Administration to Seek Stop-Gap Measures

Drive Begins to Save Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The White House today began a drive to keep the Foreign Aid program alive through stop-gap means while it tries to work out a new proposal that will get the multi-billion-dollar program past Congress.

As the Senate Foreign Relations Committee met to review the consequences of Friday's surprising 41 to 27 Senate vote which sentenced foreign aid to die Nov. 15, GOP congressional leaders already had the word from President Nixon about the initial strategy he will pursue.

White House officials said Nixon wants to keep the $2.9 billion program going beyond Nov. 15 by means of a continuing resolution —a device which allows spending to continue at present levels.

The program is operating at the moment under such a resolution passed when the fiscal year began. That resolution expires Nov. 15 and a second continuing provision presumably would put the expiration problem aside until early next year.

The White House discussed its strategy Sunday with Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and House GOP leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan. Nixon relayed his feelings on the subject to Scott and Ford by way of William E. Timmons, his assistant for congressional relations.

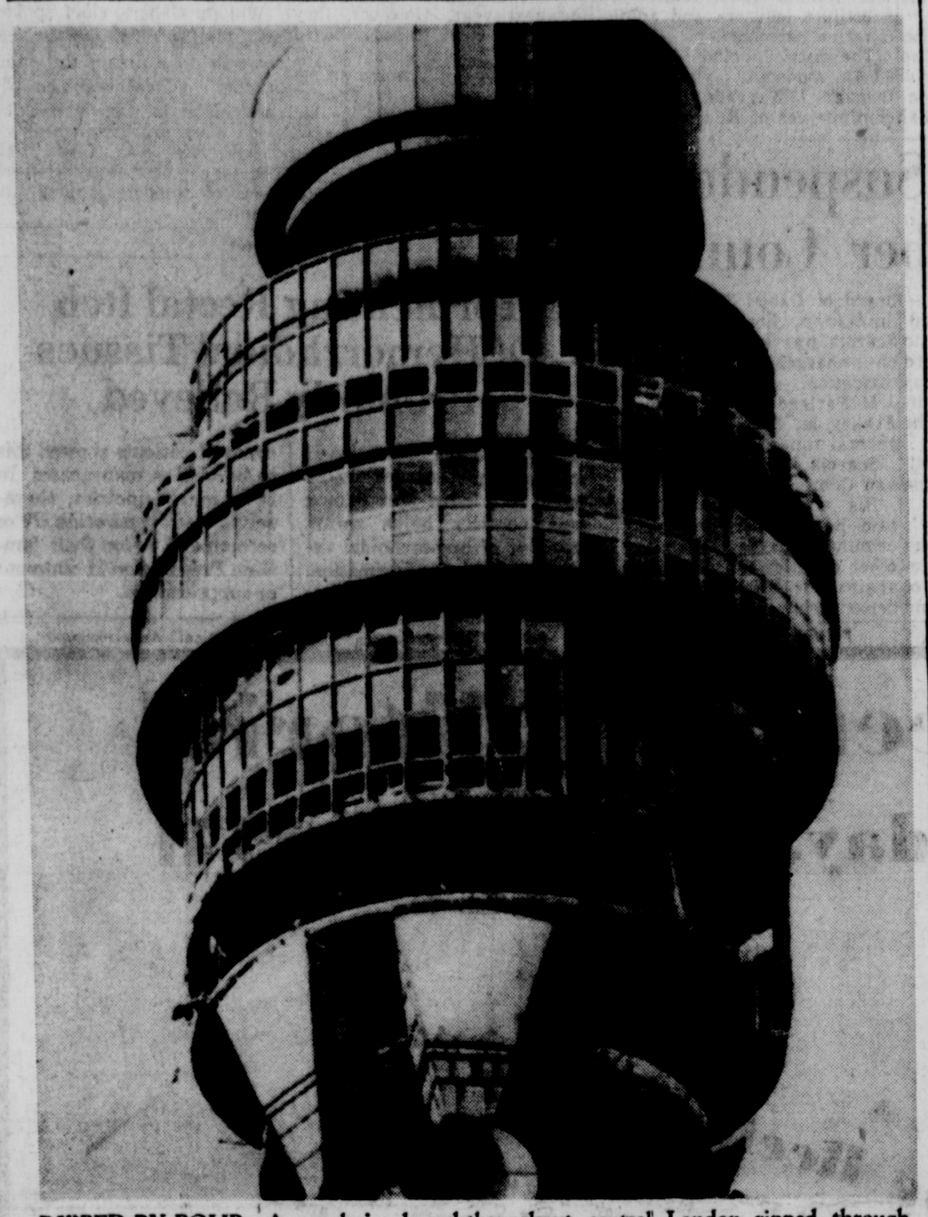

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said the continuing resolution, if approved, would allow the administration to keep foreign aid alive in a coordinated way. There will be no attempt to win supplemental appropriations for any one country or group of countries, Ziegler said, calling that approach only a piecemeal solution.

Instead, White House officials said, the administration will seek legislation to develop a fully coordinated foreign aid program. They said this will mean starting from scratch.

Without any bill, Ziegler said, there would not even be funds available to keep foreign aid administrative offices open. There is still roughly $4 billion in committed funds in the foreign aid pipeline which will eventually get to the recipient nations regardless of what Congress does, though it would take several years for all of those funds to trickle out.

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., said he would introduce legislation today to restore the $300 million credit arrangement under which Israel can buy airplanes; to restore assistance to Pakistani refugees; to prohibit all military aid to the Greek government; and to continue United Nations funding at present levels.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., said he believed some noncontroversial items, such as the aid to Israel, would be approved in some form of interim measure. Fulbright was interviewed Sunday on CBS-TV "Face the Nation."

RIPPED BY BOMB—An explosion heard throughout central London ripped through the upper levels of the Post Office Tower—Britain's tallest building—showering tons of concrete and steel onto the street below early Sunday. A hole measuring 30 by 20 feet could be seen near the top of the structure. A man, claiming to speak for the Irish Republican Army (IRA), called Britain's Press Association and said the outlawed organization was responsible. No one was injured in the explosion. Americal Division Returning

SAIGON (UPI)—The Americal Division, the hard-luck unit that has embodied America's frustrations with the Vietnam War, is going home to the peace and quiet of a Pentagon filing cabinet.

It will be a long time, however, before the division recovers from America's most unpopular war or before Vietnam gets over the mishaps of the Americal.

The U.S. command announced Sunday that 2,980 men of the Americal's Headquarters Company and other 23rd Division combat and support units have started standing down, Army jargon for breaking up and turning into a paper unit to be re-activated if needed.

The announcement was the final step in the piecemeal disintegration of the 23rd Infantry Division—Americal is short for its World War II name, American Forces in New Caldonia. It marked the retirement of the Americal's blue arm patch—four white stars representing the Southern Cross.

The command announced the stand-down earlier in October of two of the division's three brigades. The third—the 196th Light Infantry Brigade with about 5,000 men—will remain in Vietnam as an independent force.

The Americal seemed to attract trouble during its four years in Vietnam.

Nine of its men won Medals of Honor, but the Americal's most famous soldier was undoubtedly a short platoon leader with a baby face—Lt. William Calley.

Calley's Charlie Company platoon was blamed for the wholesale massacre of the civilian population of My Lai 4 hamlet on March 16, 1968. The balding lieutenant—whose case still is under review—was convicted by an Army court martial of killing 22 civilians at My Lai. Charlie Company stood down a month ago.

Related Viet stories on page 26.

The Americal—since nicknamed the "Atrocical" and "Ameicalley" by some of its punsters—wound up in more hot water than any other unit in the war zone. Another incident involved the controversial defoliant, agent orange, which temporarily was banned by the U.S. Army in April, 1970, after government tests showed the plant killer caused birth defects in rats.

Despite the ban, Americal soldiers dumped a hundred 55-gallon drums of the defoliant over the jungles of Quang Tin and Quant Ngai Provinces the following summer. It wasn't stopped until press reports revealed the unauthorized use of the plant killer.

There also was the case of Brig. Gen. John W. Donaldson, who commanded the Americal's 11th Brigade when he was a colonel. A group of helicopter crewmen accused him last summer of taking pot shots at Vietnamese civilians from his Americal command helicopter in 1968 and 1969. The Army is investigating.

British Explosions Under Investigation

LONDON (UPI) — A bomb today blasted a central London army drill hall less than one-half mile from Parliament, the second explosion in the capital in less than 24 hours. There were no injuries.

An explosion early Sunday severely damaged an upper floor of the 620-foot post office tower, Britain's tallest building. It tore a 20 by 30 hole, sending debris crashing to the streets below but causing no injuries.

A woman telephone caller told the Press Association, the British News Agency, that the post office tower attack was the work of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA). But both the official and Provisional IRA in Dublin denied responsibility.

Every available policeman in London was called in for special duty Sunday night to protect "sensitive" public buildings, a police source said. Particular attention was given to the Houses of Parliament, where Queen Elizabeth will go Tuesday for the state opening of Parliament.

The woman caller to Press Association Sunday also said "the next one will be Victoria Tower." Victoria Tower is attached to the House of Lords side of Parliament and contains many historical documents. A search produced no bomb, police said.

The 1:45 a.m. blast today damaged the front doors of the Royal Tank Regiment headquarters on Eleverton Street and shattered windows, police said. It was heard throughout the area, including at nearby New Scotland Yard and Westminster Hospital.

Decision Most Important In Drug Education Area

Editor's Note: In Sunday's first installment on this three part series on drugs in Ulster County, Dr. Elmer S. McKay outlined his program, the Kingston Narcotics Guidance Council and his views on drugs in general. McKay contended that drug education will have to start in the schools. It has started in the schools. This second part outlines the program in the Kingston Schools Consolidated.

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

"The most important thing in the whole educational process is that in the end, it's the individual who makes the decision. Right or wrong, good or bad, doesn't enter into the decision-making process. In the end, it comes down to why do you need the thing. That's what we haven't been dealing with. We've been dealing with the effect rather than the cause."

Richard Sheridan is the administrator of the Kingston Schools Consolidated District's $75,000 health education program. Some people label it "drug education." Sheridan doesn't like to be that restricted. He brings to the job enthusiasm and an impressive background which includes a master's degree in health education from Indiana University where he was director of its drug education program.

Sheridan heads a seven-teacher department which will attempt to take a "social, emotional and physical" approach to health problems, problems such as venereal disease, environmental pollution, drug education, alcohol and tobacco.

Special

Sheridan goes with the theory that drug use is a cop-out, a result of pent-up hostilities. Show kids a way to deal with their hostilities and you're well on your way. Better yet, show them that other kids have the same problem and they're making it without drugs.

The program will begin in kindergarten with courses on drugs, simple, but to the point. "The emphasis on K-3 will be on behaviorial modifications," Sheridan says. "We want to establish some kind of understanding with little kids about drugs. How they're used. How they can be misused.

"It's important with little kids to develop some kind of method they can deal with their emotions. Bring the hostilities out in the open. Let them work it out together."

Group - centered problem-solving, "peer pressure" appears at every level of the program. Grades four, five and six will get into "a little more intensive education" in the field of drugs. "We'd like to clear up some of the misinformation that's been coming out."

By the seventh grade the program will try to establish a decision-making process. Peer pressure, according to Sheridan, is strongest in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades. "Suppose a kid has a (verbal) fight with a teacher. We talk it over within the group. Maybe the kid bad-mouthed the teacher. Maybe the teacher picked on the kid. We look at it. Kick it around. Maybe the kid is right. Maybe the teacher is right. Maybe one of them apologizes to the other. It's better than keeping it bottled up. The kid has a way out."

The drug council at the high school level is an extension of the junior high rap session-peer group discussions.

"We figure that by the time a kid gets to the high school level he should have the factual information and the exposure to a lot of decision making so he can deal with his problems."

Sheridan tends to discount to much publicized drug problem. "This whole thing has turned around as far as the kids are concerned, Sheridan says. "The glorification of drugs is a myth for the majority of the kids. The media and Walter Cronkite are two years behind the times."

"The kids are off dope and onto each other. They're trying to deal humanely with each other. They're trying to be happy on a gut level. They're into nature and the natural things. You can't do that if you're high on dope."

Sheridan sees the kids helping each other. "Maybe a kid is getting into narcotics. Maybe he's so uptight he figures there's no other way. Well, there's plenty of kids who are making it without dope. They're kids just like him. We get them together. They can help each other.

Still, Sheridan doesn't think the kids are going to make it alone. "It all comes from the top, he says. "There's going to have to be a change from adults and their drug usage. There's a certain hypocracy about this whole thing. The kids recognize it."

Basically what Sheridan is talking about is communication, be it kid to kid or parent to kid or kid to parent. "I don't really see them getting together at this point. Not really. They're too far apart.

"We can help the kids. Something like the guidance councils can help the parents. They can begin to get together We can try for an approach to a common ground."

Ulster County Observes Relatively Mild Halloween

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON

Bad weather, strict curfews and school the next day helped keep mischief to a minimum during a relatively mild area Halloween celebration.

Such was not the case in other parts of the state and country. A 13-year-old Cleveland, Ohio girl was knifed to death while trick-or-treating; six children in Niagara Falls were injured when they bit into pin-laden Halloween candy; and an Illinois girl was treated for a drug overdose when she ate a candy bar treated with mescaline.

But here in Ulster County, authorities reported one of the quietest Halloween nights on record. Even the usual incidents of egg throwing, pumpkin smashing and window soaping were kept to a minimum.

The lone exception was in the Town of Esopus, where Chief Constable Joseph Feraca reported numerous cases of malicious mischief, particularly in the Ulster Park area. Several windows at the town barn were smashed and there were numerous complaints of adult trick-or-treaters calling on homes with stockings pulled over their faces.

Feraca said Sunday night was the "worst Halloween we've had in 15 years." He further said that the police had their "hands tied" because residents refused to sign complaints after vandalism arrests were made.

Kingston city police reported only scattered instances of egg tossing and there were no reports of serious damage.

The Town of Hurley remained calm throughout the weekend. Chief Constable Philip Sinagra said the 9 p.m. curfew in Hurley was a "tremendous asset." "By 8:40 p.m. Sunday night, the streets were completely clear," said Sinagra, "and we didn't receive one report of trouble after 9 p.m."

The Northern Dutchess village of Tivoli, however, had its share of excitement. State Police arrested three, aged 19, 20 and 21, for disorderly conduct, and later arrested a fourth person after he was caught placing a refrigerator and sofa in Tivoli's main intersection. Gary McDonald, 20, of Poughkeepsie, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 15 days in jail.

Quiet of Countryside Shattered by Bomb

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The 900-pound dummy bomb fell with a whistling roar that shattered the Sunday quiet of the Tennessee countryside.

Five-thousand feet below, in his family's fashionable, two-story house, Al Parrott, 16, was startled by the sound that he couldn't comprehend.

"I've never heard anything that loud before," he said.

Then there was a terrific crash.

"I jumped up and tried to run out of the house, but I couldn't because there was a big hole in the floor of the hall," said young Parrott.

Only later did the youth learn that his home had been accidentally dummy-bombed by a Navy jet on a routine training flight from the Naval Air Station at Marietta, Ga. The pilot, Reserve Navy Cmdr. Virgil Tedder of Atlanta reported the incident immediately to the Federal Aviation Administration.

Al's father, Judge James W. Parrott of the Tennessee State Court of Appeals, said his home was a "total loss." He said the nonexplosive bomb hit the house "sideways and on a slant. "The missile went right through the middle of the house and crashed through two floors and finally stopped when it hit a car in the driveway near the swimming pool," said the judge.

Young Parrott said he was in his bedroom at the time and his 80-year-old grandmother was at the other end of the house.

"I could hear my grandmother hollering and crying but I couldn't see her because there was so much dust and plaster in there," he said. "After I found out she was all right I ran and jumped into the car and drove to church where my father was."

GOBLINS AND GHOSTS—Frightful, eerie creatures, some from the farthest reaches of the galaxy, invaded the Municipal Auditorium Sunday night to cast their wicked spell on a helpless band of oldies summoned to judge a Halloween Costume Contest. Donna Stewart (front) of 361 Hasbrouck Avenue, led the invasion, and she was selected "most horrible." Other winners were, (L-R), Michael Loffler of 31 Lindsay Avenue, most humerous; Jeffrey Simmons, Clifton Avenue, most patriotic; Alicea Barnes, 38 West Chester Street, most original and Janet Swarthout, 46 Adams Street, most unusual. The event was sponsored by the Parks and Recreation Department. (Freeman photo by Van Cort)

Area Accidents Mar Weekend

By WALTER S. CLARK

PLATTEKILL — Traffic accidents in the area over the Halloween weekend claimed the life of a 21-year-old New Jersey motorist, and resulted in personal injuries to several others, according to police.

Slippery pavement resulting from fog and light drizzle of rain in some areas, combined with wet leaves on highways, contributed to some of the mishaps.

Plattekill police said Cirilo Gonzales of 52 Oriental Street, Newark, N. J., was driving south on Route 32 in this town late Saturday night when his car went out of control, skidded off the right shoulder of the road and crashed into guard rails. The operator was ejected.

Gonzales was taken to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh where he was pronounced dead on arrival shortly after midnight Sunday, authorities reported.

Orange County Coroner Harvey T. Agnew, who investigated with police, said Gonzales' death was attributed to internal hemorrhaging. No autopsy was conducted.

Two passengers in the car were identified as Richard Malave of 85 Liberty Street, and Santos Bonet of 25 Landers Street, both of Newburgh. They were taken to St. Luke's Hospital and released after treatment for minor injuries, police said.

Another traffic accident was reported on the State Thruway north of the Town of New Paltz shortly after 4:15 a.m. Sunday.

Injured in the mishap were Ronald Deschaine, 41, Albert Young, 42, and Kenneth Knudson, 40, all of Staten Island. They were all taken to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh by Fatum's Ambulance. Their injuries were not immediately determined. According to available information the three men were traveling on the superhighway when the car went out of control and overturned.

Four members of a Kingston family on their way home from church at 11:30 a.m. Sunday were injured when their car was involved in an accident on Route 32 near the Ulster-Kingston Airport, Town of Ulster.

The car was driven by Peter Schell, 46, of Heather Lane, Whittier. He was taken to Benedictine Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance and today was reportedly in the intensive care unit. He suffered a cerebral concussion and other injuries.

Schell's daughter, Alice, 14, also was injured and taken to the same hospital by Fatum's Ambulance. Vincent and Joseph Schell, 15 and 12 years respectively were treated at the hospital and later released. Details of the accident investigated by Trooper Paul D. Aery of the Hurley State Police were incomplete this morning.

The Sheriff's Office reported a one car accident occurred on Griffin Drive, Town of Hurley at 7:45 p.m. Sunday involving a vehicle driven by Judith A. Falvey, 19, of 110 Fair Street, Kingston.

A report by Deputy Sheriffs Robert Johanssen and James Cronin noted that the woman told investigators that some children threw eggs at her car causing her to lose control as the vehicle left the road. A passenger, June Heiser, 18, of 127 Downs Street, was taken to Kingston Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance and treated for injuries of the right shoulder and leg, deputies reported.

Hudson Teachers on Strike

HUDSON, N.Y. (AP) — The Hudson Teachers' Association called a strike for this morning, saying administrators for the Hudson School District had broken off last-minute negotiations at midnight.

The 230-member association voted last week to strike the district's seven schools in a dispute over terms of a new contract. But the teachers had avoided a final strike call as long as negotiations to avert the walkout were in progress.

School Supt. John A. Barrett said Sunday that all schools will remain open, staffed by substitute teachers and administrative personnel.

The district includes some 3,000 students, kindergarten through 12th grade, from the communities of Hudson, Greenport, Stottville and Claverack.

The dispute centers around an HTA demand for a binding arbitration clause in the contract. The teachers also want a $7,500 minimum starting salary for next year. However, they have told the Hudson Board that they would give way on the $400 raise if granted an arbitration clause.

Other HTA demands include a $325 longevity pay increase for teachers with 12 years experience and a class size limitation of 24 students in the 9th through 12th grades.

A 3½-hour negotiating session held on Saturday produced no progress toward a settlement, according to spokesmen for both sides in the dispute.

William Gebert, chief spokesman for the HTA, said he was not able to estimate the exact number of teachers who will participate in the strike. He said, however, that when the strike vote was taken last Thursday, there was a strong show of support among the members.

Fish Expresses Disappointment Over Nationalist China Issue

KINGSTON — Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. today expressed "deep disappointment over the U.N.'s tragically short-sighted vote to expel Nationalist China from the world body."

Fish, who supported the administration's move to admit the Peking government to the U.N. without expelling Taiwan, said he felt the General Assembly's vote will seriously undermine the future effectiveness of the U.N.

He said it would be interpreted as a "rebuff to an honorable founding member of the United Nations who has kept faith with its purposes, a signal that the U.N. may be entering a period of petty partisanship which can only undermine its role as a forum for resolving international disputes without resort to force, and a foreboding precedent that may return to harm other members of the General Assembly who have not been as scrupulous as the Nationalist Chinese in upholding the U.N. ideals."

Congressman Fish declined to speculate on how Taiwan's ouster might affect the long-term future of the world body, but pointed out that it clearly erodes the principle of universal representation on which U.N. peacekeeping effectiveness must be based. "The very principle which brought the Communist Chinese into the U.N. has now been twisted to expel the Nationalists," Fish said. "Once the precedent of expulsion has been established, it may well come back to haunt other members."

Deputy Suspended On Barber Count

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP) — A Sullivan County sheriff's deputy, who allegedly tried to shear the long hair and beard of a jailed college student, has been suspended pending a further investigation of the charges.

Sheriff Raymond Dunn notified Lt. Ralph Brakey of the suspension Saturday.

The president of the county's Responsive Student Union, John McFarland, has accused Brakey and five other deputies of attempting to cut the hair and beard of Daniel Scarola, 18, of Smithtown, Long Island, after Scarola was arrested last week on charges of public intoxication.

McFarland also charged that Brakey hit Scarola in the face several times.

Scarola is a student at Sullivan Community College.

His attorney, Ira J. Cohen, said he was considering filing criminal charges against the other deputies and civil charges against the county and sheriff's department.

Koenig Reelection Urged

The Freeman feels that one good term deserves another and this is especially so in the case of the Democratic incumbent, Mayor Francis R. Koenig of Kingston.

The Republican challenger, Robert F. Murphy, has, in effect, run an admirable campaign but his campaign was a matter of too little, too late. The GOP mayoral standard-bearer made some telling points accusing the Koenig administration of overspending generally and specifically in the fields of insurance and recreation. Murphy also attacks the mayor for what he claims are inadequacies in the urban renewal field.

But, in the words of Al Smith, let's look at the record.

In the field of urban renewal, we feel that Frank Koenig and his administration have excelled. According to the mayor's undisputed figures, a total of $11.5 million in reconstruction has occurred during his administration. Included in that is a new city hall, the new fire station, the Urban Development Corporation project (131 apartments totalling $4-million) and the Rondout Recreation Center.

Also in the uptown area, we can see the new Metropolitan Life Insurance building and the new Goodyear building.

It might be well to point out that the new taxable construction will replace all the lost taxes from demolished property, both uptown and downtown.

In addition, Mayor Koenig has upgraded the city's police department; is attempting to improve Kingston's private bus service; has fought valiantly for the Ulster Arterial, to insure proper financial credits for the urban renewal program, and has been instrumental in creating and supporting the Narcotics Guidance Council, probably the best in the area.

It is an enviable first term record and deserves to be recognized this coming Tuesday by city voters at the polls.

And logically, the candidacy of T. Robert Gallo as alderman-at-large on the Democratic ticket should be supported in order to contribute to the effectiveness of Koenig's second term. Gallo has proved himself an excellent liaison in the past between the common council and the mayor's office, and while his challenger Bernie Singer is a man who represents high principals and pocketbook reality, we feel Bob Gallo also fills this bill

LIFE SAVER — Charles Grant (L), 14, shakes hands with his brother Roosevelt, 9, as Nurse Terry Walsh looks on in a New York City hospital. Earlier, Charles saved Roosevelt's life by catching him when the younger boy was forced by fire to leap from a fourth-floor window to the street below. The impact of the catch knocked Charles down, but he was not hurt. Roosevelt was reported in good condition. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Guitar-Strumming Killer

Girl, 14, Held Hostage for Nine Hours

MANILA (UPI)—A guitar-strumming killer took a 14-year-old American girl hostage today, held her for nine hours in a bedroom of her father's house, then walked out with a shotgun in her ribs to escape by helicopter.

The girl and two other hostages forced to board the helicopter with the Filipino gunman later were released unharmed. The helicopter pilot said the killer was dropped off somewhere in the Zambales Province 45 miles northwest of Manila.

The man was discovered this morning while robbing the home of American businessman Charles R. Butler. He stabbed a man to death, shot and seriously wounded Mrs. Butler, and took Butler's youngest daughter, Susan, hostage. He held her in an air conditioned bedroom of the house for nine hours while he negotiated his release. During that time he drank whiskey, ate pork and beans, whistled and occasionally strummed a guitar.

Some 200 police under the direction of Manila Mayor Antonio Villegas, who lives next door, stood helplessly by during the long siege. When the man left the house for a short auto drive to the nearby Manila Polo Club, sharpshooters were ready, but were unable to get a clear shot at him.

The gunman took Susan, her uncle, Stewart Raab, and a Manila Daily Star crime reporter, Ruther Batuigas, with him aboard the helicopter. Batuigas had been negotiating with the bandit.

The helicopter pilot, Alvaro Aspillero, radioed that he had let the man off in the Zambales province about 6 p.m.—11 hours after the nightmare began with the discovery of the thief in the Butler home. A second robber escaped over a back wall when discovered and was not involved in the kidnaping.

The helicopter was supplied by the Manila Daily Times.

When he left the house, the gunman wore a hat and coat and Susan, an eighth grade student, had on a black and white polka dot shirt. Along with Raab and Batuigas, they drove in a small auto to the nearby Manila Polo Club, where the five-seater helicopter was waiting for them.

They climbed in and took off for an unknown destination with a police helicopter keeping a safe distance away. The gunman was given the $2,500 dollars in "getaway" money he had demanded prior to takeoff.

Butler, an American business man born in the Philippines, was in Oklahoma City on business. He was reported to be flying to Manila.

More than 200 policemen under the direction of Manila Mayor Antonio Villegas, who lives next door, surrounded the house during the more than nine hours the bandit kept Susan hostage in a bedroom.

Batuigas, who took the man four bottles of whiskey and some cans of pork and beans, and some tranquilizers for Susan, said the bandit was "very desperate but playing it very cool." Butler has five other children.

The three eldest children were in the United States, another was away with friends, and a son, Andy, 17, was able to escape from the house.

According to police two bandits entered the house along with several other persons who were gatecrashing a Halloween party. They were discovered early this morning trying to burglarize the home.

One man escaped over a back wall, but the other stabbed to death a maid, Martina Caldoza, 49, with a bayonet-like sword which was used as decoration in a front room of the Butler residence.

Bomb Explosion Rips Belfast Office Building

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—A bomb explosion at the height of the mid-morning shipping rush today badly damaged a downtown Belfast office building, the army said.

Several persons were cut by flying glass in the blast at the Fanum House building, an army spokesman said. One was taken to a hospital in shock.

Police threw a cordon around the building, which houses the Belfast offices of Radio Telefis Eirann, state radio-television network of the Irish Republic.

The explosion went off only hours after masked gunmen invaded three customs posts on Northern Ireland's frontier with the Republic, forced out the occupants and blew up the structures. There were no injuries.

The attacks on the posts at Kinawley, Strabane and Belleek came 24 hours after similar bombing raids destroyed eight other customs posts along the Northern Ireland-Irish Republic border. The weekend attacks left only six posts still operative.

The army spokesman said an attack on a fifth post Sunday night may have been prevented by an eight-man army patrol which came under fire from gunmen on the Buncrana Road, not far from the Buncrana customs post.

Phase Two Machinery Being Hammered Together

WASHINGTON (AP) — The machinery for Phase 2 of President Nixon's economic program is being hammered together to the tune of controversy in Congress and tough talk by labor.

President Nixon has named the members of the Wage Board and Price Commission who have the job of setting standards to prevail when the present absolute freeze is allowed to thaw after Nov. 13.

But Donald Rumsfeld, executive director of the Cost of Living Council, said the freeze will remain in full effect until modified—even if the modifications are not ready by Nov. 13.

As the House Banking Committee opened hearings on the legislation Nixon has requested for continuing controls, AFL-CIO President George Meany, who is a member of the Wage Board, declared "The test of our continued cooperation is the to equality of sacrifice."

Meany contended the legislation as submitted does not meet the test.

Other labor spokesmen made it plain they will press hard for retroactive payment of the wage increases now frozen.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally told the committee nothing in the proposed legislation would forbid such payments. But Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans said such payments would be "highly damaging to business."

Sunday, Herbert Stein, the economist in charge of planning Phase 2, said he hoped Meany wouldn't try to challenge any Pay Board decisions. His remarks were in a copyrighted interview in U.S. News & World Report.

Nixon's request for extension of control authority a full year—until April 30, 1973, prompted several congressmen to respond that Congress should have an earlier chance to review Phase 2. Connally said less than the full extension would cause damaging uncertainty.

There was sentiment also for firmer language on control of dividends and interest—especially interest. Nixon asked only for standby powers.

The new economic program's tax component meanwhile made progress in the Senate Finance Committee. The panel approved the investment credit for business spending on equipment in the form the House has passed—not exactly to Nixon's specifications, but close enough for the administration to accept.

Light Election Turnout Seen

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) — A lack of any heated statewide controversy or contests is seen as a major reason for a predicted light to moderate turnout of New York State residents in Tuesday's elections.

Although a record 8,070,222 New Yorkers are eligible to cast ballots in a host of local elections and for three statewide questions, only a lukewarm interest in the proposed $2.5 billion transportation bond issue was considered by political experts as a vote-drawing attraction.

Although an estimated 400,000 18-to-21-year-olds are eligible to vote in their first November election, the effect was impossible to judge, with no statewide candidates and the law virtually preventing students from voting in college towns.

Four Assembly and two state Senate seats are at stake to fill vacancies from Queens and Long Island, but Republicans are expected to easily hold their majorities in both houses.

Two Republican Assembly seats in Queens are not being challenged by Democrats, while the seat of the late Sen. Edward Speno, R-East Meadow, was expected to go to Republican attorney George Murphy of Seaford.

In other key races:

Poughkeepsie: Mayor Louis O. Fiore fighting for re-election after losing the Democratic nomination to attorney Jack Economou.

Dutchess County: Republican William Bartles expected to take county executive spot away from incumbent David Schoentag, whom he defeated in GOP primary, Schoentag running as Conservative.

Kingston: Democratic Mayor Francis Koenig expected to win second term over former police chief Robert Murphy.

Syracuse: Seven of nine city council seats at stake, in what is considered referendum on Democratic Mayor Lee Alexander's first two years in office.

Ithaca: Six candidates for mayor, including incumbent Hunna Johns who lost Republican primary.

Oneida: Mrs. Sara Schaffer, the city's first woman mayoral candidate, against Republican and Conservative men candidates.

Plattsburgh: Roman Catholic priest, Roland St. Pierre, in uphill fight against Democratic Mayor Francis Steltzer.

Newburgh: Mayor George McKneally running as independent after losing Republican nomination to city councilman George Shaw.

Albany County: Republican District Attorney Arnold Proskin fighting strong efforts of Democratic organization to replace him with attorney Thomas Keegan.

Buffalo Battle . . . Sedita vs. Regan

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Silver-haired Frank A. Sedita pits the woes of "Nixonomics" against Edward V. Regan's "New Generation of Leadership" Tuesday as the Democratic party seeks to end 148 years of Republican control in populous Erie County.

Sedita, the 64-year-old three-term mayor of Buffalo, has been aided by a parade of national figures--all striking hard at the Nixon administration's economic policies--in his bid to become the first Democratic county executive since the post was created in 1960.

Regan, 43, a former Buffalo common councilman and the defeated GOP candidate in 1970 for state comptroller, has received little help from the party's national or state leadership. But he's picked up votes in the suburbs with a warning that a Sedita victory would extend the "city hall machine" to the rest o the county.

As the campaign headed into the final 24 hours, most politicians considered the outcome a tossup because of a big undecided vote.

A poll published by the Buffalo Evening News gave Regan a 14.8 per cent lead in the county, but noted that the oddsmakers "viewed the contest as an even-money wager." The News added many persons said they were voting against Sedita because he "was doing a good job as mayor and they wanted him to remain in that position."

Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, Edward M. Kennedy, Edmund S. Muskie and Birch Bayh and Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York City all have campaigned for Sedita and all have aimed their attacks at the administration's economic policies. Sedita's newspaper advertisements have pictured Regan in the company of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and Governor Rockefeller.

Regan has responded with a charge that the Democrats were ignoring local issues and seeking to shift attention to the national scene.

The campaign reached a fevered pitch a week ago when Sedita accused Regan of distortion and deliberate attempts to mislead the public through television advertising an alleged "whispered" charge that the mayor was connected with organized crime.

Regan denied all charges and insisted Sedita was in desperate need of an issue to turn the campaign around.

Bond Issue . . . Yes or No

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — With a Yes or No vote on a single question Tuesday, New Yorkers will determine the course of the state's transportation program for the next few years and—according to Gov. Rockefeller—decide the degree of tax increases next year.

The proposition asks whether the state shall be permitted to borrow $2.5-billion through bonds for transportation. It is only one of the three questions that will appear on the ballot, but it is the cause that Rockefeller has campaigned for the hardest.

This is an off-year election with no statewide offices at stake but voters will be confronted with long ballots listing contests for local offices and court seats.

The polls will be open from 3 to 10 p.m. in New York City and from noon to 9 p.m. elsewhere in the state.

There will be three statewide questions on the ballot. The transportation bond issue appears as Proposition No. 1 and the others as State Constitutional Amendments Nos. 1 and 2.

Amendment No. 1, known as the community development article, would allow the state and local governments to lend money to private firms for public-benefit projects. Amendment No. 2 would extend for another 10 years a debt-limit exemption to help communities build sewage treatment plants.

There have been objections that the transportation bond issue and the community development article involve a "mortgaging of the future," in that it commits future generations of New Yorkers to tax increases to pay off the debts.

Others wonder whether new roads are needed and cite the dangers to scenic areas and the pollution threat of vehicles.

Still others fear that the community development article would lead to the building of public housing and some object to the idea of government lending money to private interests.

Rockefeller has promoted a favorable vote on all the questions and has campaigned hardest for the transportation bond issue.

Highway construction will be curtailed drastically if the bond issue fails, he says.

In addition, the governor notes that $300 million from the sale of the bonds has been written into this year's $7.9-billion state budget.

The state already faces a deficit of $470 million this year, and this would rise to $770 million if the voters turn down the proposition, he says.

Rockefeller says that tax boosts and state aid cuts may be required next year to meet the projected $470 million deficit. If the deficit is larger, the taxing decisions may be even more painful, he argues.

The voters approved a $2.5-billion transportation bond issue in 1967, which the Rockefeller administration says is exhausted. In that year, a strong favorable vote in New York City overcame upstate reluctance.

There was significant opposition to the bond issue this year in New York City but it weakened considerably after an agreement among political leaders to link the bond issue revenues to a plan to preserve the city's 30-cent subway and bus fare.

Chisholm Serious About Presidency

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., the nation's only black congresswoman, said Sunday she was "deadly serious" about running for the presidency and hinted she might make the bid as an independent.

"Out of habit," the peppery, 98-pound lawmaker said, "we blacks have always been good obedient Democrats, voting the Democratic ticket because our fathers and grandfathers and great-grandfathers did."

She said she was the only "viable alternative" to "Tweedle Dee and Tweedle Dum" candidates and would enter four, possibly five, primaries.

Mrs. Chisholm, 47, described her bid as a "grass roots movement" and said she had no intention of running her campaign along traditional lines.

"I am a highly visible campaigner," she said. "I take to the streets, not to the halls. I go where the people are."

She said she had groups in 30 states backing her.

She spoke at the San Francisco African-American Historical and Cultural Society.

Mayor Koenig Ain't No Robin Hood— He Soaks the Poor; Helps the Rich!

Although a nice place to visit, the Plaza is underassessed almost $800,000, and this is hitting the Kingston taxpayers below the belt—right in the wallet, to be exact!

The taxes paid by the Plaza ownership are greatly reduced because of this, and it is shockingly unfair to the average Kingston voter working for a living every day. Mayor Koenig and "me-too-Gallo" are allowing the Plaza assessments/taxes to ride at a reduced fare. This is costing you taxpayers $100,000 per year, 'cause it's like giving the Plaza owners a $100,000 gift. What did the Democrats give you lately? Seriously, haven't you had enough of this immature Democratic government? Go the Republican Way.

Place for New Industry

The people know one thing about industry; with it we thrive, without it we don't. Industry means jobs, jobs mean fresh dollars flowing back and forth across Legerland, and fresh dollars added to our economy mean still more jobs . . . in service institutions, stores, etc.

So, obviously, the people are going to do their best to encourage our present industry to thrive, to encourage our present industry to expand here, to encourage new industry to locate here.

Of course, thriving, expanding industry means fresh dollars and job selection. Added together, they mean a happier, more contented people. Also it means more dollars going into better churches, schools, parks, streets, police and fire service, hospital care and much more.

Meanwhile, an increasing number of industries are now reversing the trend of the recent past during which industry moved into cities. More and more industries are now seeking out non-city towns. There are many reasons:

More land is available for industry in non-city places. Kingston has plenty of land outside its present city limits. Because most industries want the police and fire protection, the sewer service, etc., of being inside city limits, Kingston needs badly to extend its present city limits in order to help present industry expand and new industry to locate here.

Most working men and women in non-city areas are proud of their work, are individuals, stand on their own feet, and in general are better producers.

Most city governments in small towns know the importance of industry in terms of offering good jobs, good pay, and tax help plus the leadership that people in industry give all civic enterprises in a town.

The point is that industries and industry people are not buried, overwhelmed, lost and forgotten in non-city towns as they are in cities. In places like Ulster County, industries are vitally important and everybody knows it.

Where Students Vote

The question of whether students will be permitted to vote at their college towns rather than at home is not yet settled everywhere. Many college communities are resisting the move to permit students to wield the balance of power at the polls, because at best they are temporary residents not involved in local issues. But the trend in court cases has been to let students vote at college. Here in Ulster County they are granted absentee ballots and vote in their hometowns.

This trend has a possible serious effect on the Congress, if not on the outcome of the presidential vote itself. Americans for Democratic Action, the ultra-liberal organization, analyzing the vote in the last Congressional election, finds that at least 40 congressmen considered conservative could be defeated next year by the student vote if they are permitted to vote in their college towns.

Now headed by former Rep. Allard K. Lowenstein, who led the "dump Johnson" movement four years ago, ADA has been concentrating on registering newly enfranchised youth for a "dump Nixon" try. They assume that college students will be largely liberal Democrats if not radicals, and they gloat that they have been registering 2 to 1 Democrats.

This is the way ADA sees the possible outcomes in congressional districts: In 23 districts now held by conservative Republicans, the number of college students is larger than the congressman's last margin of victory. In seven other Republican districts, the number of students is close enough to provide the impetus for a strong liberal challenge. In 10 conservative Democratic districts, the student registration is mounting serious primary challenges.

ADA names names and districts, and this gives the incumbents the chance to take measures to defend their seats.

Important to this issue is that representatives supposedly represent their constituents, not a group of collegians who come and go each year. These threatened communities should band together to fight off in the courts the ADA takeover and let students vote at home where they belong.

TRADERS' BEADS TELL—Archaeology researchers in Africa turned up beads of multiple descriptions from many levels of grave sites and ruins, where glass-making was unknown in ancient times. A nuclear-chemistry graduate student is using her science to explain the when, why, how, and where the cultural currents flowed along the trade routes to medieval Africa, and to give clues to Africa's lost history.

The Hounding of McCormack

WASHINGTON — Despite pious protestations to the contrary, the Nixon Administration has been hounding the 80-year-old former Speaker, John McCormack, who retired from public life last January with a presidential plaque.

President Nixon proclaimed his "great admiration and respect" for McCormack, and White House press secretary Ron Ziegler solemnly denied that the Administration was investigating McCormack's activities. Yet on September 13, two U.S. Attorneys, Richard Ben-Veniste and W. Cullen MacDonald, paid a quiet call on the old man and grilled him about a hardship discharge he had sought for a Navy enlisted man.

The two investigators finally agreed not to bait the grieving McCormack in his hospital room where he is keeping a lonely vigil at the bedside of his beloved wife Harriet. During more than 50 years of marriage, he has never spent a night apart from her. Now he has moved into Washington's Providence Hospital where he sits day after day beside the life-long companion who, sadly, seldom recognizes him.

McCormack balked at answering the gumshoes' questions at the hospital for fear it might upset his wife. So arrangements for the interview were made at the Washington law office of his nephew, Edward McCormack.

The former Speaker's answers will be presented to a federal grand jury in Miami. His former aide, Doctor Martin Sweig, will also be brought to Miami from the federal penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa., for questioning tomorrow (November 2).

We exposed how Sweig, using McCormack's name and sometimes imitating his voice, fixed federal cases for a five percenter named Nathan Voloshen. Sweig is now serving a 30-month sentence for perjury.

We emphasized, however, that our investigation showed no skulduggery by the former Speaker. He did government favors for his friends and constituents in the tradition of South Boston's "Last Hurrah" politics. But we could find no evidence that he ever took a penny for these favors. On the contrary, he carefully segregated his personal and congressional accounts, scrupulously paying all personal postage, telephone calls and other bills out of his own pocket. He routinely turned down campaign contributions, since he had almost no campaign expenses.

Investigation Denied

We reported that the Nixon Administration, nevertheless, was conducting a criminal investigation of McCormack at the same time that President Nixon honored him at a White House luncheon. Our story brought an angry denial from Press Secretary Ron Ziegler, who called in reporters to tell them:

"I very seldom do this, but I want to give you this bit of information that appeared in a column by Jack Anderson. . . . I would like to volunteer and state quite categorically that any allegations that the Nixon Administration tried in any way to seek or to pin criminal charges on Speaker McCormack, as the column suggests, is totally and absolutely false and without any foundation whatsoever."

Zeigler added, for extra emphasis, that he had "talked with the Attorney General" who confirmed that the Justice Department was not investigating McCormack.

Yet even as Ziegler was issuing his categorical denial, a federal grand jury in New York City was trying to pin criminal charges upon the retiring Speaker. Three of McCormack's closest friends, who had been invited to the White House luncheon in his honor, were subpoenaed before the grand jury just a few days after listening to the President praise McCormack and present him with a plaque.

The three were Rubin Epstein, president of Boston's City Bank and Trust; George Feldman, former ambassador to Malta and Luxembourg; and Peter Cloherty, consultant for a Boston engineering firm. They were asked whether they had ever given McCormack any payments or gifts in return for government favors.

Records Subpoenaed

The grand jury also subpoenaed McCormack's financial records from the Boston City Bank and demanded all the Cloherty firm's records relating to federal contracts. The testimony completely exonerated McCormack, and the bank records showed he had only a modest savings account. The old man's total net worth, an accumulation of a lifetime, was estimated around $100,000.

A few days ago, the Justice Department's Richard Ben-Veniste turned up in Boston where he is still prying into McCormack's affairs. He went through the Speaker's private papers which are stored at Boston University. McCormack had willingly given him permission to examine them. The U.S. Attorney made off with a file dealing with a hardship discharge for H. A. Keller, Jr., son of a Miami industrialist. The young man had sought to get out of the Navy in 1959 because of his wife's poor health.

The Justice Department's gumshoes also questioned McCormack about his relationship with Michael Silbert of Miami. They asked whether he had accepted any payments, gifts or contributions from Silbert for seeking Keller's discharge. The ex-Speaker replied that he had known Silbert for 15 years but had never accepted anything more substantial from him than a box of cigars.

The Justice Department, meanwhile, has offered to help soften Sweig's sentence in return for his "cooperation." Sweig's attorney, Paul Smith, told us the inference, if never stated outright, was that Sweig should give evidence against McCormack.

This is what has happened since Ziegler, in behalf of the President and Attorney General, denied our story about the investigation of McCormack. It may give the public an idea as to the worth of a White House denial.

"Let's Go Downstairs and Make Another Speech!"

Ray Cromley Says

Taiwan Will Be Defended

WASHINGTON (NEA) — the United States will continue without reservation to guarantee militarily the defense of Nationalist China on Taiwan against invasion.

After talking with key officials in the White House, Pentagon and State Department, it can be stated that the United States will be prepared to use air, naval and technical units in that defense and to supply arms, equipment and munitions.

No U.S. ground troops would be used. Chiang Kai-shek's forces are sufficiently large and well-trained to handle all infantry requirements.

For some time the State Department had been informally discussing whether it would be practical and advisable to reduce the small contingent of U.S. troops maintained on the island.

Officials have cut back the activities of the Seventh Fleet in the area so that this government would not "antagonize" the People's Republic of China.

But there has been no thought of abandoning our commitment to defend Nationalsit China, neither to make points with Peking nor to conform with sentiments expressed in the United Nations.

As a result of the U.N. vote to expel the Nationalsits, informed officials say in fact that there may now have to be a delay in reducing the U.S. military contingent on the island because of the psychological repercussions such a union of the two nations if that developed as the result of direct negotiations. The Peking government is known to have made recent feelers toward Taiwan and its leadership.

The United States will continue its we-will-defend-Taiwan stance for the foreseeable future, even though U.S. officials can now be expected to reognize mainland China and end their diplomatic relations with the Nationalsits.

But all those nations which conceivably could be involved in the military defense of Taiwan voted for the retention of that island country in the U.N. These included Japan, Australia, New Zealand and the Philippines. South Korea, not being a U.N. member itself, could not vote on the issue but it favored Taiwan's continued membership.

With diplomatic recognition or without, with U.N. membership or without, Taiwan still has considerable political and economic clout. It does considerable exporting and importing, and its major trading partners are not about to let go of that trade, even if they are required to set up "unofficial" arrangements. This the British have already done. There are British government commerical representatives in Taipei and Nationalist Chinese commercial representatives in Great Britain.

It is likely that after the reaction has set in to the United Nations vote and the countries involved have second thoughts on what they have done in expelling a loyal member of their congregation, the U.S. position in defending Taiwan may gain more respect.

Rhapsody of One Hungarian

There is a small select place in New York called the Stanhope Hotel and, in a dimly-lighted room, a man of pale face and compassionate eyes looks through the flyleaf of a grand piano as his spidery fingers bring "Der Rosenkavalier" to life and his audience, dreaming with their glasses, sees the bouffant ladies of old Vienna dancing in crystal ballrooms with dashing Austrian officers.

It is 15 years since I stood behind George Feyer and watched him work his magic. He has forgotten I have not because he can make you dream anything he has in mind. Feyer is the pure pianist, the man who scorns the showboat arpeggios and the deafening counterpoint. He can drift from an impeccable rendition of "Tea for Two" into "Anitra's Dance" and off into the "Student Prince" without anyone being aware that he has changed the thinking of his audience three times.

When he grew up in Budapest he was Georgi Fejer. The boy wanted to be a banker, like his father, and wear a cutaway and a silk hat. His mother was a piano teacher and tied his feet to a piano stool each evening after supper. The boy was not given a choice. He was small, obedient and sad.

Fourteen years later, he was majoring in music at the university. Overnight, a transition occurred. He began to like music. He found that he could order his fingers to do anything on a keyboard and, without further thought, they would execute the musical phrases perfectly and sometimes with such soft rapidity that they could hardly be heard.

He was speaking through a keyboard. He studied under Zoltan Kodaly and Ernst von Dohnanyi and they worked his fingers eight hours every day. At the age of 23, George Feyer was a concert pianist in a city of great musicians. To earn money, he got a job in the Magyar Szinhas. To please the romantic dreamers, he dropped Johann Bach for Irving Berlin.

George Feyer's aspiration was to lift cheap jazz to a position of respectability. He was playing "Varsity Drag" and "When Day Is Done" without being able to pronounce the titles. In Paris, Fever and Tibor Adler played four-handed jazz with such complex improvisation that they jammed the Elysee Cafe.

The world tore pages from the calendar until the figure stood at 1939. Adolf Hitler chose that autumn to devour Europe. Feyer served in the Hungarian army. The worst accolade to accord a loser is to say that he fought gallantly. The Hungarians fought gallantly. Tibor Adler was in an army hospital when a bomb came through the roof. He and 200 other wounded burned to death.

A New Start

The world of music and mute with fright. When it was over, in 1945, Feyer stood in the deafening silence and studied his fingers. They looked old. He married the prettiest in Budapest, and tried to start over. The people hungered for bread, not Bach.

When Judith told him baby was coming, he was selling cameras. Humbly, with hat in hand, he went to authorities and asked if they would like someone to amuse them with piano music at the officers club. They said: "Why, sure, whatever-your-name is." He played his heart out. When drunken men asked him to play "Brigadoon" and "Oklahoma!" and "Pagan resurrected the tunes, and made them live.

A major heard that Mrs. Feyer was pregnant. He passed the word up, and he passed it down. Money was dropped in a hat. A top priority cargo was flown from the United States with layettes, bottles, sterilizers, bassinet, diapers and a playpen. George Feyer lost his pride. He cried.

Five years later, a new group of officers, including a general, asked Feyer would he like to go to America and become a citizen. He said it was too much to ask. They said they could cut red tape. He told Judith, and she wept and said, "No. We don't know the language. We don't know the people. No."

He coaxed. "Try it. If it is bad for you, we come back in a year." The Feyers, including little Robert, arrived in New York on an ocean liner. Mrs. Feyer saw the huge skyscrapers and burst into tears. "No," she begged. "No. It is too big. We are little people."

He took her by the arm, carried the little boy, and got their luggage onto the cobblestones of West Street. She was still crying in the taxi. In Hungarian, she begged over and over to be taken home to Budapest. The taxi stopped at a small hotel. George Feyer handed the cab driver the fare. The driver handed it to Mrs. Feyer.

"Here," he said in Hungarian, "this is your first welcome to your new country." That was 20 years ago.

Tonight, he looks wistfully through the flyleaf of a piano. The fingers rest lightly on the keyboard. They begin to dance and tell of nobler worlds and finer dreams.

Shhh...

Peace Symbol

Editor, The Freeman:

What are our children watching on television? Is everything they hear and see on the boob tube the complete, factual truth or is it only some twisted segments of the truth that the promoters of the particular children's program want to tell the unsuspecting children.

On Sunday October tenth (10th) "Wonderama" was devoted entirely to peace, a very good and well meant objective. Part of their program was to inform the children of the origin and meaning of the so called "PEACE SYMBOL" that we see all over. They said that through extensive research they learned that the symbol originated and was designed in England, in 1958. Apparently their research did not extend any further than the nose on their face. If they did make a thorough study, they only told the unsuspecting children a falsehood that agrees with their liberal, and as it appears procommunist philosphy. They said that it was taken from the semaphore letters "N" and "D" standing for Nuclear Disarmament. This is also incorrect. If the semaphore letters "N" and "D" are superimposed in a circle as they say, you do not get this so called peace symbol.

The truth of the matter is this symbol was designed in 67 A.D. by the Emperor Nero. Simon Peter was crucified and burned upside down on it. In those days it was known by several names including the "Broken Cross", the "Nero Cross", the "Sign of the Broken Jew", and the "Symbol of the Anti-Christ". It was used in the "Black Mass of Satanists" during the Middle Ages, when it was known as the "Mark of the Beast". It was painted on the doors of churches closed up by the Communists in Russia. It was also used by the Nazis on their death notices, and was branded on the dead bodies of Jews. Yes, this symbol has been used by Facists, Nazis, and Communists for many years. If this symbol means peace it is a "Peace Under Communist Domination" with the complete elimination of all organized religions Judism and Christianity in particular.

They gave the name of the man who allegedly designed this symbol, in 1958. They fail to mention that he was a member of the Anti-Christian Fabian Society, various Communist organizations, and that he was sympathetic to the Nazi cause prior to World War II.

Is this the type of programming you want your children watching? Do you want your children to be told all the facts truthfully on programs such as this or do you want them to learn only the distorted half truths and very possibly lies as put to them by the liberal minded writers and editors of programs such as this? You may think, who cares what the true historical meaning of this symbol is as long as everyone thinks it is a peace symbol. If so this is a gross error on your part. Do you want your children and anyone else who thinks it is a peace symbol to to be used as pawns and tools by those forces who advocate the destruction of our government, the abolishment of all religions, and the end to all freedoms? Well this is what is happening.

What can be done about this situation? We surely cannot forbid our children from watching T.V. Write the networks and sponsors of programs such as this. Demand this type of programming be stopped. I beg those of you who may sit back and say "let the other guy do it" to take pen and paper yourself, because your neighbors are all letting you do it for them.

Sincerely,

Citizen's Role

Editor, The Freeman:

In a TV Interview on a local station last July, I included some remarks on the political structure of the nation which are appropriate at this particular time of year. Perhaps your readers might find them of interest.

Question: What do you see, politically, Rabbi Eichhorn, as more involvement by the people in their political system? Do you see, perhaps, more political parties rather than just the Republican and Democratic party — or maybe I'm putting words into your mouth. But do you see any change in the political structure of the nation?

Rabbi Eichhorn: The country doesn't need political parties so much as it needs concerned people.

Anybody who votes a Republican ticket or a Democratic ticket year in and year out, without even investigating what the Republican or the Democratic Party is saying or doing is only helping mire America in the dirt.

What we have to be is not Republicans or Democrats, but we have to be concerned Americans. And you can vote for whatever party you want when you think your party is right. Or vote for whatever candidate you want when you think your candidate is right. But if an individual who says "I'm a Republican" or "I'm a Democrat" or "I'm a Socialist" or whatever label he wants to call himself, doesn't take the interest, and doesn't take the time and make the effort to become involved, — to become knowledgeable and to become a real representative human being in terms of setting the example, he is not a concerned American. I am looking for commitment, concern, involvement, — rather than party. Whether we have two parties or one hundred parties, it doesn't make the least bit of difference if the spirit is lacking on the part of the people.

Cordially,

Atom Tests

Editor, The Freeman:

I have recently written to President Nixon, our Senators and Congressman, protesting the impending nuclear bomb test on Omchitka Island in Alaska.

I oppose this test on the ground that it might endanger the local environment, and worse; might cause earthquakes and tidal waves in Japan. This alone makes it morally wrong, but also to explode an atomic weapon during the S.A.L.T. talks seems reprehensible. From the economic standpoint, such a test seems a waste of money when we already have a stockpile of weapons that can destroy the earth.

Senator Javits and Congressman Fish both replied that they agree with my position and are lobbying with President Nixon to halt the test. Mr. Fish also said that the Japanese government has made a similar request.

It remains in the hands of the President, since he alone has jurisdiction over the Atomic Energy Commission. I feel this is wrong and that the House and Senate should have this power.

I urge your readers to consider my arguments and to write to the President concerning this matter.

I grew up in a cold war, and I don't want my children to. Let us use atomic energy for peaceful use.

Muskie Win Seen in Florida

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Some expert appraisers in Florida assert strongly that Sen. Henry M. Jackson today is nowhere near being a close competitor of Sen. Edmund Muskie for next year's March 14 primary — even assuming Alabama's Gov. George Wallace is not on the ballot..

Later intensive campaigning may very well alter this circumstance, since the present evidence is that Jackson has an acute identity problem in Florida and has not effectively diminished it so far. He still has five months in which to build.

A variety of soundings taken in the state suggest, then, that Muskie — in a race without Wallace — could have a clear-cut victory in the 81-vote Florida primary.

The very thing that is working against Jackson, the recognition factor, is believed by certain professionals to be potentially helpful to New York's Mayor John V. Lindsay should be decide to be a candidate. As well recognized as Muskie, he might, they contend, do considerably better than any other Muskie rivals. Yet, here again, they insist that today he trails far behind the Maine senator.

The other likely non-Wallace contenders in Florida are just not in it at this writing. Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota is said to be walking the state on a treadmill. Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma would be hard to locate with a detective.

Now this hard-nosed appraisal is not frozen like a pay scale. The Florida Democratic political situation is already a bubbling pot, and the rising heart may change the mix within just weeks.

Jackson has completed another good swing; Muskie has his October dates in the state; others will be coming soon again.

The withdrawal from the race of Sen. Birch Bayh because of his wife's illness sent other bidders chasing after his key supporters and workers. McGovern's managers claim they have already picked up about three-fourths of Bayh's people, including top operators in Tampa and Orlando. A weekend McGovern strategy meeting in Orlando was aimed at grabbing off even more.

Bayh's most celebrated Florida backer, Mayor David Kennedy of Miami, is trying to hold off from new commitment elsewhere. But the pressure on him from other Democratic candidates is incredible. Says the mayor's aide:

"We've heard from everybody but Richard Milhouse Nixon."

Despite the harsh October verdict of some experts, Jackson says his latest trip into Florida heartened him. His well-known union backing surfaced in new ways, and observers traveling with him thought he did well. But he himself says he has a real identity problem. And his quite liberal stand on school busing for racial purposes seems like a tough dose to be swallowed in conservative Florida sectors where he is supposed to be strong.

McGovern can take comfort only from the campuses. A straw poll at the University of Florida in Gainesville showed him beating both President Nixon and the whole posse of Democratic contenders. There is no solace for him in wider soundings. He is busy organizaing with fresh efficiency, but he doesn't have much to organize.

Of course, there is some sentiment in Florida for the almost totally inactive Sen. Edward Kennedy and for lightly active Sen. Hubert Humphrey. Neither, though, is a probable primary entry.

Wallace is the man who gives everybody in Florida the fits. His entry would badly fuzz up the whole thing. The professionals scoff at reports he has tailed off and wouldn't do well. They say he could win the primary. Wallace says that, too, and he may mean it.

Paint Group Endorses Restrictions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The paint industry endorsed proposed government restrictions on lead content of paint but said the change might eliminate some shades of green, orange and yellow.

The National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association said manufacturers could adapt to the proposed 0.5 per cent lead limit "without forcing the consumer to accept major sacrifices in quality and durability."

The limit, formally proposed by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) Friday, would cover paint applied to toys, pencils, furniture and any other products accessible to children. It is designed to lessen incidence of lead poisoning, which causes approximately 200 deaths annually.

Robert A. Roland, executive vice president of the association, said he anticipated no significant price hikes as a result of the standard except perhaps for tints in which lead is important.

"Some greens, deep yellows and oranges will go," Roland said in an interview. He said any new formulations of these colors, might cost more.

Slum children are the primary victims of lead poisoning. Authorities agree that they ingest lead mostly from flaking walls coated with the high lead paints used years ago. Roland said the high lead paints haven't been made for 30 years.

Bell Attends Session On Water Situation

CARMEL — The water supply needs of Putnam County, similar to those of Ulster County in that they are ever increasing, were discussed Friday at a meeting of the Temporary Commission of Water Supply Needs in Southeastern New York held in Carmel in Putnam County.

Commission Vice President Assemblyman H. Clark Bell was in attendance as was State Senator Jay P. Rolison of Ulster and Dutchess Counties and Assemblyman Benjamin A. Gilman of Orange County.

Bell said that Putnam County is the fastest growing county in the state and is being hampered in its development because it is, at present, unable to tap the New York City Water Supply derived from upstate watersheds.

Bell recalled that Ulster County could have had an IBM typewriter factory here but lost out to a place in Kentucky because of inadequate water supply. Ruppert Beer wanted to locate at the border of Westchester and Dutchess Counties too and decided against it because of lack of water, he explained, adding that "water is the key to development of the entire Hudson Valley."

"Everyone takes water for granted," Bell continued, "but it should be remembered that 70 per cent of the total population of New York State resides in Sautheastern New York. With that in mind, orderly and balanced development and progress of this area is dependent upon dramatically increasing our water supply resources and developing better delivery systems.

Hopefully, we still have ample time to adequately plan for the anticipated needs of the population increase expected in southeastern New York State in the next 15 to 20 years.

Bell said that more meetings are planned with informational hearings scheduled for Nov. 9 in Nassau County, for Nov. 17, 30 and Dec. 1 in New York City and Nov. 29 in Orange County. Additional hearings will be held in Westchester and Suffolk Counties.

Two Women Stabbed to Death In Apartment

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two women were stabbed to death in their upper West Side tenement apartment Sunday, police said.

A boarder from the apartment building, who was undergoing observation in the Bellevue Hospital prison ward, was the prime suspect, police said. Police did not know about the murders when he was hospitalized.

The bodies of Mary Majors, 61, and Frances Knowleton, 42, were discovered Sunday night. Both had been "stabbed repeatedly," police said.

About 12 hours before the victims were found, Edward Kaferlein, 40, walked into a police station and began screaming irrationally. He was taken to Bellevue.

Det. Sgt. Dennis Flynn said Kaferlein matched the description neighbors gave of a man who "argued violently" with the victims.

Two Killed In Crash Crash

CARROLLTON, N.Y. (UPI) — Two persons were killed early Sunday in a three-car accident on Route 219 near this Cattaraugus County community.

The dead were identified as Patrick Scanlon, 32, of Salamanca and Andrew Campbell, 28, of Kill Buck.

Cattaraugus County sheriff's deputies said a car driven by Robert Keller, 18, of North Tonawanda, was traveling east when it apparently went out of control and veered in front of the car in which the two victims were riding.

A third car then rammed the car which was being driven by Scanlon.

Scanlon lived at 85 Atlantic St. No address was given for Campbell.

Truck Driver Is Arrested On DWI Count

KINGSTON

A truck driver was arrested by police at 2:35 a. m. Sunday after he was stopped on Broadway and cited for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

According to police, the man had in his possession 5½ tablets described in court papers as benzphetamine hydrochloride. Lang refused to submit to a blood test, authorities reported.

Wave Kills 2,500 Sweeping Village

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Indian Government Radio said today that at least 2,500 persons were killed when a 16-foot tidal wave swept through their villages along the Bay of Bengal last Friday.

Unofficial reports put the toll at more than 5,000 dead, the broadcast said, adding it might go higher when communications are restored with the devastated region in the Cuttack and Balasore districts of eastern Orissa state, 150 miles southwest of Calcutta.

Biju Patnaik, a member of the Indian Parliament, told newsmen in Bhubaneswar, the Orissa State capital, after a tour of the area hit by the tidal wave that he thought at least 10,000 persons had been killed.

The Times of India, in a dispatch from Cuttack, said more than one million persons were left homeless by the tidal wave and accompanying cyclonic winds of up to 100 miles an hour.

The paper also said that air drops of food were urgently required in some areas where all roads, rail lines and air strips had been flooded or destroyed.

The low-lying coastal villages are the target of annual cyclonic storms and tidal waves that roar in from the Bay of Bengal and devastate an impoverished region of East Pakistan and India in which the inhabitants survive on a bare subsistence diet even in the best of times.

A storm and tidal wave last November killed at least 300,000 persons in the Ganges River Basin in East Pakistan 300 miles northeast of the disaster area this weekend.

The weekend storm passed Sunday from Orissa to neighboring West Bengal state, destroying homes and rice crops in coastal villages that only two months ago were ravaged by the annual monsoon floods.

The area in West Bengal is filled with East Pakistani refugee camps, but initial reports said most of the camps had escaped the brunt of the storm.

PEOPLE OF THE TOWN OF SAUGERTIES

IT IS YOUR MONEY THAT WE ARE TALKING ABOUT

The Republican candidate for Supervisor has misled you on several occasions and distorted other important issues in his recent campaign.

1. SAUGERTIES NOW HAS THE LOWEST TAX RATE OF ANY TOWN IN ULSTER COUNTY.

On October 22nd the Republican candidate for Supervisor said: "The claim that Saugerties has the lowest tax rate in Ulster County is false." This is untrue. Here are the facts: Based on true value, the town of Saugerties tax is $3.60 per thousand, the lowest in the county. By comparison the town of Ulster has a tax rate of $3.66 per thousand. Wawarsing has a tax rate of $5.12 per thousand. New Paltz has a tax rate of $6.67 per thousand. Woodstock has a tax rate of $7.10 per thousand.

2. Supervisor Schovel will indeed have earned more than $40,000 in interest on investments by the end of this year. The Republican candidate for Supervisor would like to see that money still sitting in his bank. He will not find it there. Interest gained has been applied to the funds from whence they came, and has been used to reduce taxes for those funds. To date Supervisor Schovel has earned $18,308.88 interest for the highway fund—Enough to pay the costo one heavy duty truck or one highway workers salary for three years. In the general fund Supervisor Schovel has earned $3,675.97 in interest—enough to pay the cost of two new voting machines. In the Glasco water district funds Supervisor Schovel has earned $17,980.77 interest—enough to pay the entire pay roll for the district for four years.

3. Supervisor Schovel's budget for 1972 provides for yet another cut in the tax rate, town wide.

4. The complete Republican Board of Assessors is solely responsible for any inequeties or unfair assessments. Supervisor Schovel has no control over the Republican Board of Assessors. The Chairman of the Board of Assessors is the President of the Republican Club.

5. On October 28th the Republican candidate for Supervisor said that he would attempt to have the insurance for the volunteer fire companies paid for by the Town government. He knows that this is not possible. Supervisor Schovel has tried to do just that. However, state law makes it illegal for town governments to pay the insurance for volunteer fire companies. The Republican candidate for Supervisor is making a campaign promise based on an illegal act.

THESE ARE THE FACTS

If you are going to make an intelligent decision on November 2nd you are entitled to know the truth. If you think that this represents responsible government, then re-elect Mike Schovel and elect Bud Smith and Morrow Decker.

A Stubborn Scot vs. Crime

Gordon MacAuley
They kept avoiding his eyes.

By TOM TIEDE

BISHOPTON, Quebec — (NEA) — Ah, Canada. Still a virgin after all.

Years ago when Francis Wharton, a trapper, lost his dental plates during a long sojourn in the bush country, he shot a deer, glued its molars together, stuck them in his mouth, and then ate the animal with its own teeth.

Frontierism.

Rugged individualism.

And it's not yet dead in this grand land.

Take Gordon MacAulay, as example. He's a kind of latter day Francis Wharton. He's a shop owner in this tiny (pop. 650) cattle community east of Montreal. And there'll be none of the pussy-footing modern sentiment for him. He's rooted in aged stone. He belives in what he can do himself with his own hands — and he places damn few limits on what his own hands can do.

Recently, MacAulay and other residents of Bishopton have become increasingly alarmed over the intrusion of one of the modern era's vexing dilemmas: crime. Cattle rustling has grown to critical proportions in the region. Vandalism is endemic. Armed robbery has become commonplace. MacAulay's general store (the only one in town) has been broken into four times in the last four years, and the same is true for the few other community businesses.

Many local people have been content just to deplore the situation. But characteristically, Gordon MacAulay, "a stubborn Scot," has done something about it.

The other afternoon, three young men walked into MacAulay's store and asked for soda pop. MacAulay didn't like their looks. "they wouldn't face me square," he says, "they kept avoiding my eyes." Besides that, the lads seemed to have an abnormal interest in the store itself, walking around, peering here and there, almost, MacAulay determined, as if they were studying the place.

So that night, when the rest of the town went home for bed, MacAulay did not. He remained in his store. With his gun (a Winchester .351), his dog, (a belligerent Belgium police), and a nag that his store was about to be robbed.

He was right. Early the next morning, about 3 a.m., MacAulay was wakened by the sound of his dog barking. He grabbed his rifle, crawled out of a cot in the back of his store, and then heard a scratching sound at one of his windows.

"Sure enough," he says, "there was something out there, picking away at the putty around the window pane. I didn't know exactly what to do at the time. If I fired my rifle then, I'd only scare them away to rob somebody else. So I decided to crouch down in the store and wait to see what happened."

MacAulay waited 20 minutes. Not a pleasant 20 minutes. Rugged individualist though he is, the store owner is also human. He began to sweat. His throat clogged up. His lungs began to burn. He did not know if the robbers were armed ("some of them around here have been known to carry machine guns"). And he was, quite frankly, scared to shakes as the window pane was finally removed.

There were two robbers. (A third was cruising up and down the street in a getaway car.) And when the first one crawled through the window, Gordon MacAulay decided to act and act fast. He fired two shots from his .351, "not to kill, but to scare," in the general direction of the intruders. At least one of the slugs hit home. The lead robber let out a screech, grabbed at his hip, and fell to the floor. The bullet tore out six inches of leg bone.

MacAulay shouted out at the men, but they didn't respond. The uninjured robber picked up the injured one and pulled him back through the window. MacAulay thought about firing again (he still had nine bullets in the chamber) but didn't. He had hit them, shocked them, slowed them down. That was enough.

As the intruders fled, MacAulay called the Provincial Police headquarters (10 miles away), gave them full descriptions plus the bandit's route of travel.

Within minutes all roads out of the Bishoptown area were covered with patrol cars — and inside an hour the three robbers were stopped and apprehended.

The incident, to be sure, is a brutal one (the injured man will be maimed for life). And it is the kind of thing that would not be welcome in, say, America, where society frowns on individuals taking the law into their own hands.

But in Canada, or at least here around Bishoptown, the MacAulay tactics have been unanimously applauded. The three bandits he helped nab later admitted to a whole series of similar burglaries, thus, as one Bishoptown resident says it: "They got just what they deserved, and if everybody had Gordon MacAulay's guts, there ain't a crook in Canada what wouldn't retire for his health."

Five Day Plan Set For Ulster Smokers

KINGSTON — Smokers who want to kick the habit will have their chance next week under a special five-day plan to be conducted here by a physician-clergyman team at the George Washington School Auditorium on 67 Wall Street.

The plan consists of regular evening group therapy sessions films, and a daily personal control program for homework. It has been successful over a period of more than 10 years in major cities around the world.

Conducting the program locally will be Dr. George Wootan, a physician and Pastor Dan W. Schiffbauer, a minister of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Group therapy sessions will be held from 7:30 p.m. each evening beginning Nov. 7.

Already held successfully in cities all across the United States and Canada, the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking features such topics as the psychological and physical aspects of the habit, how craving can be lessened, how willpower can be strengthened, physical effects of smoking, organizations of a buddy system and may other techniques designed to break the habit within a five-day period.

A feature will be the film "Countdown" depicting in full-color a lung cancer operation, to be shown Nov. 7, the first evening of the therapy session.

Sponsored by the Kingston Seventh-day Adventist Church as a community service, the five-day plan aims to help improve the health of the community and to contribute to the national physical-fitness program, Pastor Schiffbauer explains.

Attention Town of Saugerties

The Opposition Is Using the Term "DESPERATE".
THEY ARE INDEED DESPERATE.

Why else would my opponent—an active volunteer fireman—deliberately make a news release advocating something he must know is now illegal? I refer to the news release asking that the Town continue to assist the Volunteer Fire Companies with their insurance policy negotiation and premiums. The opposition must know that the State. Department of Audit and Control has recently sent the Town of Saugerties its' copy of the recently completed State Audit of the Town Funds. They've read it, it's a public document on file in the Town Hall.

PAGE 6 OF THE STATE AUDIT REPORT SAYS IN BLACK AND WHITE AND I QUOTE, " Claims, AUDITED BY THE BOARD, WERE EXAMINED FOR LEGALITY AND VALIDITY. DURING THE PERIOD EXAMINED, THE TOWN CONTRACTED FOR A SINGLE POLICY OF INSURANCE, PROVIDING VOLUNTEER FIREMEN'S BENEFITS, TO INDEMNIFY THE TOWN AND THE SEVERAL FIRE DISTRICTS THEREIN.

SINCE THE TOWN IS NOT LIABLE FOR VOLUNTEER FIREMEN'S BENEFITS, IT MAY NOT CONTRACT FOR SUCH INSURANCE (VOLUNTEER FIREMEN'S BENEFIT LAW—Sec. 32 Par. 1.)

Until this year towns have purchased insurance for their fire companies, but no more. It is now ILLEGAL for the Town to assist the volunteers in insurance matters

Our volunteer fire companies perform a tremendous service for our community and it is indeed a heavier burden for them to carry, but the Town must abide by the State directive.

MEMBERS OF THE TEAM WHO HOPE TO BE ELECTED TO THE TOWN BOARD SHOULD NOT RELY ON INUENDO AND HALF FACTS. THEY ONLY END UP WITH THE FOOT FIRMLY WEDGED IN THE MOUTH

THE TOWN OF SAUGERTIES CANNOT AFFORD TO HAVE MEN IN PUBLIC OFFICE WHO DO NOT KNOW WHAT THEY ARE TALKING ABOUT. A RESPONSIBLE MAN NOT ONLY KNOWS HIS FACTS—HE CHECKS THEM TO BE DOUBLY SURE.

PLEASE ELECT RESPONSIBLE MEN TO THE TOWN BOARD. I NEED YOUR HELP ON THE BOARD.

THANK YOU.

Onteora Art Teacher Addresses College Classes

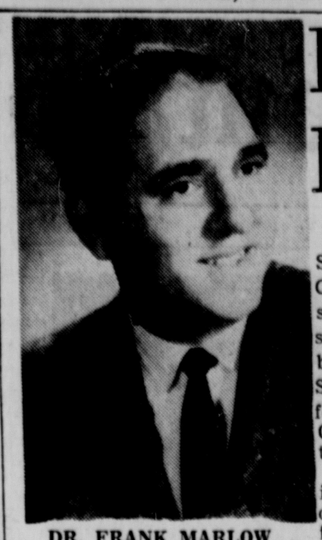

KENNETH WHITE

BOICEVILLE — Kenneth White of the Ontoera Junior-Senior High School Art Department addressed two art education classes at the new lecture center of the State University College at New Paltz recently.

He was assisted by his wife Mary, English teacher, and three students: Nikki Metzgar, grade 11; Valerie Munson, grade 12; and Nancy Smyth, 1971 graduate. He spoke of the art program at Onteora describing it as "one of the best in the Hudson Valley, but having serious limitations due to very heavy student loads and a low budget."

The college students, many of whom will be student teaching in the near future in this area, asked many questions about trends in the secondary schools. They were surprised at the desire of many talented high school students to graduate early and not go to college, according to white.

He also discussed teaching as a vocation with its advantages: contact with youth, personal satisfaction, good standard of living; and it disadvantages: the physical and psychological drain, and the challenge of being a part of an educational system which should change more to meet individual student needs.

DR. FRANK MARLOW

Dr. Marlow Selected For Annual Meeting

Dr. Frank M. Marlow, Superintendent of the Onteora Central Schools, has been selected through a national screening process for membership in the 31st annual Superintendents Work Conference at Teachers College, Columbia University, July 10 through 21.

The conference focuses on the critical issues and problems in educational administration. It gives superintendents an opportunity both to hear eminent authorities in education, industry, government and other fields and to exchange ideas derived from their own experience.

In approving Dr. Marlow's attendance W. Jack Kahn, president of the Onteora Board of Education, congratulated the superintendent on his selection and indicated his delight that Onteora would be represented.

Reagan Delivers Dozen Roses for Serviceman

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan paid a surprise visit to the wife of a Vietnam serviceman and handed her a dozen long-stemmed roses along with a message from her husband.

Mrs. Earl Huffman, the recipient, says she's "still in shock."

"The man said, 'Hello, I'm Ronald Reagan. Your husband asked me to deliver these flowers to you and tell you that he loves you."

The governor said the woman's husband wrote to him and asked if he could grant "an unusual request."

"In an attempt to find a dramatic way to show my wife how much I love her, I would like to make what may be an unusual request of you—for you to deliver to her in person one dozen roses," Air Force T. Sgt. Huffman wrote Reagan.

The governor wrote back that he couldn't make any promises but then decided "on the spur of the moment" to deliver the message, purchased the flowers himself and drove to the Huffman home. The visit was unannounced to the press, which learned of it through a neighbor.

"I kind of cried, just a bit," said Mrs. Huffman. "I'm a nobody, and I couldn't imagine someone as important as the governor taking time to deliver flowers to me. It's like a dream."

Gunmen Take Estimated $110,000 In New York City Jewelry Heist

NEW YORK (UPI)—Three well-dressed gunmen took an estimated $110,000 in jewelry from the sister-in-law of American Ambassador to Vietnam Ellsworth M. Bunker and two friends as the trio was returning from a Metropolitan Opera party.

Mrs. Arthur Hugh Bunker, a widow who under the pen name Isabel Leighton has written four books and six plays, and two companions, Mr. and Mrs. Sol Kann of Stevenson, Md., were robbed at 1:15 a.m. Sunday as their cab drove up to Mrs. Bunker's private driveway at 435 E. 52nd st., a luxury apartment building next to the East River.

Police said one of the gunmen told the women to "give me your jewelry or I'll kill you," and the women complied. No one was injured, police said.

The three were returning from a farewell dinner for Rufolf Bing at the Metropolitan Opera in Lincoln Center.

Kann, reached by telephone, would not discuss the robbery other than to say the jewelry taken from his wife was insured. Mrs. Bunker was unavailable for comment.

Mrs. Bunker's apartment building was well guarded with private security men and the area is considered a safe one, police said.

Admiral Rickover Controls Sub

CARVER (AP) — About 100 miles off the Virginia coast, Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover told a startled young officer, "You're dead."

"Take over," he said to a seaman who was watching the panel of a maneuvering control console of this submerged Polaris submarine.

The enlisted man replaced the officer and helped run the show as Rickover gave orders to "scram the reactor," one of the most tense operations aboard a nuclear-powered submarine.

A siren sounded as a flurry of hands operated instrument panels.

The maneuver was an intentional temporary stoppage of the vessel's nuclear power plant accomplished by reducing steam-generating nuclear fission "fires" and shutting off the splitting of a trillion atoms a second of uranium fuel.

It would have been done on a truly emergency basis if something went awry with the power plant and crew and plant were endangered.

Electronics Technician J. John Lennon, 26, of Joliet, Ill., later won a "well done" from his superiors for his job in taking over on Rickover's command.

For Rickover, at 71 still at sea and the oldest officer on active duty in the Navy, the test offered the opportunity to show a small group of newsmen a demonstration seldom seen by civilians.

The Carver is one of 41 Polaris submarines equipped to fire 16 nuclear warhead-tipped missiles which have a range of 2,500 nautical miles. A major component of this nation's shield against nuclear warfare, the submarines are on constant patrol in deep waters.

Thirty-one of the submarines are being readied for conversion to carry even more powerful Poseidon missiles that may have multiple nuclear warheads.

On patrol with the Carver, named for Negro educator and scientist George Washington Carver, the newsmen also experienced other submarine maneuvers.

The Carver dived to a depth of more than 400 feet. The exact depth is classified information.

The submarine also executed a full stop at full, but undisclosed, speed. The hull of the Carver trembled as the vessel suddenly was thrown into reverse throttle by Electrician's mate Eugene Gihring, 24, of Seattle, Wash.

He later said his only prior experience at a throttle was in "an old Plymouth."

The submarine often rolled badly during a seven-hour surface voyage from Norfolk, Va., where the vessel began its overnight trip.

Such surface rolling in a 25-knot wind would be true of any snub-nosed nuclear-powered submarine like the Carver because it is not designed to run on the sea's surface like conventional, nonnuclear submarines.

When the dive came, Cmdr. Donald Briggs, 41, of Gentry, Ark., the Carver's skipper, ordered, "Make (initial) depth 150 feet."

The Carver began its descent at a four-degree angle and the vessel's surface roll quickly disappeared. Eventually the submarine hit depths at which it might travel on 60-day patrols, although such depths are not disclosed.

Rickover, who walks three miles daily when ashore, set a fast pace as he led newsmen along passageways of the submarine. He climbed and descended the toughest ladders with the finesse of seamen young enough to be his grandsons.

His titles are director of naval reactors for the Atomic Energy Commission and deputy commander for nuclear propulsion for the Navy.

One passageway, called Sherwood Forest by the crew, is flanked on each side by eight fat cylinders stacked like giant trees and extending some 30 feet. The cylinders are designed to hold the Carver's missiles.

The newsmen also saw the Carver's "ship inertial navigation system," a complex of computers, periscopes and instruments designed to enable the vessel to determine its exact position from minute to minute in case it receives an order to fire its missiles.

East Berlin Nurse Faced Great Ordeal

BERLIN (AP) — Her worst ordeal in 25 months in an East German prison, an attractive East Berlin nurse said Saturday, "was to adjust to being in jail, although I had done nothing wrong."

What Elisabeth Neumann, free and in West Berlin since Tuesday, had done was fall in love with an American language student, and try to marry him despite objections from Communist East German authorities.

Love cost Lyle Jenkins, 31, of Norfolk, Va., completing work on a doctorate at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 22 months in East German imprisonment as well.

The East-West love story began with Jenkins doing two semesters of work at the Academy of Science in East Berlin, a top European language institute. He became a friend of Jack Strickland, 29, Santa Barbara, Calif., studying oceanography in West Berlin, Strickland's fiance, Brigitte Heider, 33, of East Berlin, and Miss Neumann. Each couple made marriage plans.

Jenkins and Strickland went to East Berlin in September 1969, to try to get Jenkins' girl and were arrested along with Miss Neumann. Jenkins got a sentence of 2½ years and Strickland four years on charges involving helping or enticing people to flee East Germany. Miss Neumann was sentenced to two years and nine months for trying to flee.

"After our appeals to marry and leave failed," said Miss Neumann, "I resolved to leave anyway but we had no concrete plans on how or when."

"But they have this law—against fleeing the republic. I did not consider that I had done anything at all, but I was put in jail and I had to adjust to that fact."

Prison life itself, she said, "was not nice, but a lot depended on how one behaved and worked."

Born in Czechoslovakia, expelled after the war, Miss Neumann leaves her mother in East Berlin.

"Because she is 64," she said, "we have hope she will be able to join us in the West. I have written her that I am free."

On Monday, Elisabeth related to reporters Saturday, she was isolated in prison and on Tuesday told she was bejng released, given only her personal effects but no identity or other professional papers showing her schooling or experience as a chief nurse in a ward at East Berlin's Charity Hospital.

"She is also a trained auto mechanic," Jenkins smiled, adding that once she obtains a West German passport they will go to the United States, where they plan to marry.

American Legion Auxiliary News

Mrs. Elliott Brainard, Third District chairman, was guest speaker at the October 25 meeting of Ulster County Committee of American Legion Auxiliary which took place at Sullivan-Shafer Post Hose No. 176 in New Paltz.

Mrs. Brainard gave a brief talk on the various committees sponsored by the Auxiliary. She requested all to cooperate with Mrs. Lucy Coyle, Department president, in achieving 100 per cent membership.

Leaflets on the various committees were given to Unit presidents and drug abuse was discussed. The "Need a Lift" booklet, containing information on non-veteran and veteran children, was distributed to the chairman of that committee. The booklet is a source of information on financial aid to those who wish to further their education.

Empire Girl State, one of the group's yearly programs, was also discussed, one of the chief requisites being that the girl be physically fit to participate in all actvities of this program.

The Rehabilitation Programs for veterans and various game parties sponsored by the Units help those who are hospitalized. The Christmas Gift Shop for those at Albany Veterans Hospital aids in building the morale of the veterans. Anyone who wishes to donate toward this cause is welcome to do so whether or not she is a member. New gifts for the patients to send to their families at Christmas are especially appreciated. Many afghans have been made by non-members as well as members.

The equipment chairman expressed appreciation to those who purchased magazines. Funds from the successful drive will be used solely for equipment to be loaned free of charge to anyone in need. Items include beds, wheelchairs, walkers and crutches.

A joint event, the State Commanders and Department Presidents' dinner, will be held Saturday, Dec. 4 at Lloyd American Legion Post Home, No. 193. More information on this event will be announced at a later date.

County chairman, Mrs. Shirley Sampsen, presided at the meeting.

SCISSORS FOR SEWING

Every successful seamstress has good tools. Here are some things to know about scissors and shears and keeping them working perfectly, says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist.

Quality features to look for include:

Blades scientifically ground for clean cutting; blades hot drop-forged of finest cutlery steel, not stamped out; blades nickel-plated to prevent rust; cutting edges and points guaranteed by careful inspection; shears made with inlaid blades — razor-sharp, high carbon steel blades welded to tough steel frames; blades fitted together with a screw for better accuracy; handles fitted and matched for comfort; read the label before you buy.

SEWING SCISSORS — usually range from 3 to 6 inches in length. They have ring handles of equal size and are used for light jobs. Sewing scissors are handy for work at the sewing machine, cutting light material, snipping, ripping, and darning. They are most efficient when they are 5 or 6 inches long.

BENT HANDLE DRESSMAKERS' SHEARS — generally 6" or longer. They have a small ring handle for the thumb and a larger ring for two or three fingers.

They are basically used for heavier cutting. Bent handles let the blade rest flat on the table while cutting. The best shears have inlaid blades. Practically indestructible, they form the finest cutting edges.

ELECTRIC SCISSORS — work saving accessories for the busy home-seamstress. A typical pair of electric scissors consist of a small motor in a plastic housing from which two short blades protrude. The lower blade is fixed in place and does not move. The upper blade moves up and down making many tiny snips a minute. Some models have wall plugs, others use rechargeable or throwaway batteries. Some can be used either way. Some models feature more than one speed.

When judging for yourself the quality of the scissors, take a variety of typical fabric scraps with you and cut two layers at a time as you would if you were cutting out a pinned on pattern.

Features to look for include:

Quietness (noisy ones usually vibrate more); lightweight; compact; comfortable grips; safety switches — some stay on all the time, some stay on only when pressed; and different speeds.

Read the instruction booklet before you buy.

How to care for electric scissors:

Never cut pins as these will ruin the cutting blade. When purchasing, it is a good idea to buy an extra set of blades. Put a drop of light machine oil on the blade pivot occasionally. Carbon-steel blades can be kept rust free by wiping them with a small soft cloth, damp with light machine oil. Stainless steel blades can be kept in top shape by cutting a piece of waxed paper every now and then to lubricate them.

It is nearly impossible for a left handed person to use scissors made for the right handed. A much appreciated gift is a pair of left handed scissors now available.

VERSATILE LAYERED CUT

The layered look in hair has been through a lot since it was introduced a few years ago. It's been described in many ways, such as the shag, the gypse, even the unflattering term, the ape. Layered cuts have very definite advantages over blunt, one-length hair from both the practical and aesthetic points of view. To begin with layering can correct hair problems. Many layers give an illusion of added bulk to "skinny" hair. As contradictory as it may sound, it can also make wild, too-thick hair prettier and more manageable by putting the weight in the right places.

It is adaptable to any length hair, providing you have a good professional cut. For a good looking head of hair, call Carousel Coiffures, 702-C Broadway, Kingston. 331-9330.

The Convent: Crisis or Change?

A Confrontation With a Cardinal

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — Let's take a look at why some exceptional women felt they could serve humanity better if they broke their former ties with the Vatican and the religious life — and what they are doing now.

Midge Turk, the youngest daughter of a devout Catholic family, entered the Immaculate Heart of Mary order at 18. And she remained a religious for nearly 18 years. She admits it was a struggle at first to adapt to the regimentation of community life.

"Bells ruled our lives," she said. "At times it was even a problem to go to the toilet."

One of the hardest things she had to learn was to live uncritically in close contact with so many other women.

"It was a tremendous step forward," she said, "when one day I found that I was actually happy that someone I didn't like at all had succeeded in doing well something that I couldn't do at all."

Midge, who received her B.A. and M.A. degrees while a member of the community, said her disillusionment began when she was teaching in a Mexican-American ghetto school and her life became one financial battle after another with the hierarchy in Los Angeles, headed at that time by the archconservative Cardinal McIntyre.

"I lived and worked every day amidst the worst poverty in Los Angeles with no aid from my diocese," she said. "Never once during meetings with officials was the subject of the worth of the human beings I was working with ever mentioned."

The church, she explained, also remained officially silent on the question of the burgeoning civil rights movement while blacklisting members of its flock who particpated in demonstrations or spoke out against black discrimination.

"For the first time in my religious life," she admitted, "I began to wonder whether what I was dedicating my life to was worth it.

MIDGE TURK

"The school I worked in needed cleaning up and a paint job. The kids needed books. The cardinal planted trees around the school."

Vatican II gave the nuns a chance to update their ideas and their garb. Cardinal said no dice.

Although Midge Turk admits that it was an uplifting feeling to wear the long habit of her order, she also felt that the habit could be a barrier between the nuns and the people they were trying to reach and help. The cardinal fought any change.

The frustration and tension she lived with finally caused psychosomatic blindness and eventually, on doctor's counsel, she left the convent.

Miss Turk believes that the Italian church should not dictate to the American nun since it is not relevant to today's life in the United States.

"We didn't have poverty in the convent," she said. "We take the vow of poverty but we are well cared for. But in working within the church I really saw the poverty of the poor."

Midge felt the church was finally becoming relevant to the people when John XIII was Pope. She is disappointed in Pope Paul.

"We as a church have such educational force," she said. "We should be leaders in human rights. But it's as though we are now saying, 'Enough. We can stop now.' When I hear some of the cliches and platitudes that come from Rome, I am embarrassed."

And so we move on to others who have left religious life. The hundreds of nuns who left the Immaculate Heart of Mary order in California, oddly enough, left after Cardinal McIntyre was retired. Many in the church ranks, even in Rome, felt that a more flexible prelate than McIntyre could have avoided the break. But apparently the damage had been done.

To knuckle down to engagement with the realities of secular life the nuns, under Anita Caspary, formerly Mother Humiliata, went beyond their teaching vocation to endeavor in wider public service. They formed a new community which admits married couples as well as single men and women to teach and work with the people who need their help.

Sister Corita Kent, the ex-nun and artist, is the I.H.M.'s most famous alumna. Her prints hang in the Museum of Modern Art and 20 other museums across the country. She said of Anita, "She is a quiet leader. Perfect for the age of Aquarius when there are no big heads."

Corita Kent left the religious life because she felt she needed time to unwind. But she retains a warm feeling for her former communal life. "So many super people under one roof," she said. "It was a rich experience."

The more than 300 nuns who left that order continue to run the college, high school and infirmary. The difference, they say, is that they are free to follow what Vatican II asked them to do in the first place.

Sister Anita Caspary has at least one champion she can count on — her 85-year-old mother. After watching her daughter on a television show explaining the new community's plans shortly after she had left the convent, her mother told her, "You've come a long way, baby."

Speaker for Y-Wives Meeting

Y-Wives Club will meet at the YWCA Thursday at 8 p.m. at which time the guest speaker will be Mrs. Shirley Kobran, chairman of the Environmental Task Force. Mrs. Carl B. Nordstrom, program chairman, announced that Mrs. Korbran's topic will be "What Women Can Do to Help" and is based on the current interest in ecology. A discussion and question period will follow the speaker's presentation. Members may bring guests to this meeting.

On October 21 four new members were welcomed into the club: Mrs. Anthony Fabiano, Mrs. Keith Hamilton, Mrs. Robert Hughes and Mrs. Joseph Turck. The event was arranged by Mrs. Stanley J. Tentnowski and hosteses were Mrs. Alfred J. Port, Mrs. David A. Van Etten and Mrs. Nordstrom. Mrs. William T. Devine, president, advises that new members are welcome at any time of the year and further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. William E. Barnes, membership chairman.

Mrs. Frank F. DiPietro is chairman of the autumn dinner-dance on November 13 at 7:30 p.m. at The Capri. Members and guests must make reservations no later than November 4 with Mrs. DiPietro.

Mrs. Robert P. Slover, service chairman, announced that Y-Wives will continue to provide birthday cakes for each patient at the Infirmary Annex on Golden Hill.

At the conclusion of the business meeting and program, Mrs. Tentnowski and Mrs. Paul Giannuzzi representing Y-Wives, distributed the questionnaire supplied by YWCA NATIONAL in connection with the Action Audit designed to evaluate and eliminate racism where it exists on the institutional level. Upon the completion of the written questionnaire, a discussion period took place. Since the audit is being conducted in all 50 states by the YWCA, it is felt that the individual participation of all YWCA clubs in this vast network will eventually prove valuable toward eliminating racism as it may exist in certain institutions.

Abby's Readers Comment on 'Mama's Boys'

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

N. Y. News Synd., Inc.) (© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-

DEAR ABBY: You told "HAVING DOUBTS" to grab the guy who was extra good to his mother. It's obvious that you don't know what it's like to be married to a mamma's boy. You're lucky!

Please print my true story for her to see:

Before marriage, I thought Ralph (fake name) was a real jewel. Several said: "A guy who is especially good to his mother will make a fine husband."

Maybe this is true, if the guy draws the line. Ralph didn't. In spite of the fact that I tried my best to make Ralph happy, loved, feel like a man here are a few things he did to ruin our marriage:

(1) Stopped off at Mom's house on the way to work, after work, and he called her daily on his lunch hour.

(2) Sat back and didn't say a word to defend me when his Mom put down me and my family.

(3) Took Mom out every Sunday to visit friends. When I asked to go along, Ralph said: "You wait here. I'll be back in a little while." (His "little while" was all day.)

(4) Told Mom all about our sex life. (How's that for a shocker?) She told me herself, and it was accurate, so I know she wasn't bluffing.

(5) When Ralph got sick he wouldn't let anyone near him but his Mama.

Abby, I could go on, but I think you get the point. Most guys who are soooooo good to their mothers are usually mama's boys.

Of course, our marriage didn't last long. Ralph's doctor told him if he didn't go back to his mother he would have a nervous breakdown. He went. And now I'm glad he did.

RALPH'S "EX"

DEAR ABBY: To "HAVING DOUBTS" because her boy friend always puts his mother first, you said: "Grab him. For a preview of how a man will treat his wife, take notice of how he treats his mother."

Not true, Abby. He will always put his mother first as long as she lives, and his wife will have to play second fiddle.

Believe me, I know. Well-cared-for invalids usually outlive their grandchildren.

O. W. K.

DEAR O.W.K.: The feedback on 'Having Doubts" surprised me. Ninety per cent of those who wrote disagreed with my answer and expressed the view you expressed above. For a beautiful letter from the opposition, read this:

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I agree with your answer to 'HAVING DOUBTS." When I was 19, I was engaged to a young man who seemed to have more consideration for his mother than he did me.

She was a widow, nearly 60, with a bad leg. She liked to go for rides in the car, and stop for ice cream, so my fiance always put Mom in the front with him while I sat alone in the back. I resented it because sometimes they would have conversations about people I didn't even know.

And Mom stuck like a burr. She was one of those people who said good-bye 20 times before leaving. She really was a bore to a 19-year-old girl who wanted to be alone with her boy friend.

Then I took a closer look. Her son always helped her in and out of the car. He spoke politely to her, and if her chatter bored him, he never showed it. But most important, here was woman who had raised her son alone. And he was a fine man who believed in God, and in getting a good education and in marrying instead of chasing around. She must have been quite a woman to have raised such a wonderful son.

We married, and Mom's real character came thru. She died at 73. That was 20 years ago. I still miss her.

NO DOUBTS

APRES PUNT — Guard Wayne Walton (78) of the New York Giants does a tumble after charging the ball during a punt by the Minnesota Vikings Sunday at Yankee Stadium. Other Giants are: Joe Green (33) and Steve Alexakos (60). Vikings won, 17-10. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Giants Hope Spirit Lasts

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Giants talked a lot about togetherness after their National Football League game with the Minnesota Vikings. They hope the fight and spirit they had lasts the remainder of the season.

The 17-10 loss Sunday to Minnesota was a bitter one for the Giants, who are 2-5 for the season. But it also marked an uplift of sorts because three injured players returned, the defense played tenaciously and the offense moved the ball against a fabled defense.

Minnesota pulled out a victory with a 55-yard pass from quarterback Norm Snead to wide receiver Bob Grim with 1:04 left in the game. After losing a shoe to a would-be tackler, Grim charged into the end zone to give the Vikings their sixth victory in seven games.

In the first quarter, New York got a 37-yard field goal from Pete Gogolak and Minnesota scored a touchdown on a two-yard plunge by Davé Osborn following a 72-yard drive. The Giants scored again in the second period on Charlie Evans' three-yard TD, and the Vikings tied the game with Fred Cox' field goal of 37 yards in the third period.

Running back Ron Johnson and defensive tackle Jim Kanicki saw their first regular season action after coming back from injuries. And running back Tucker Frederickson played for the first time in four weeks.

"When we give 100 per cent, we can move the ball against anyone," said Johnson, who gained 89 yards in 20 carries. "It doesn't matter who we play then, we can go good.

"We needed a mental uplift. If my coming back helps, that's good. But I'm just another body on this team and we all help," he said.

"What was different about this week?" said Kanicki. "I was playing. That was the good part but I think we did well against a good team because we concentrated and didn't make mistakes." Rookie running back Rocky Thompson was busting with enthusiasm after the game. "We had the feeling. We wanted the Vikings to know they were in Yankee Stadium and we were the Giants."

Minnesota's hero Snead, who didn't play until Kanicki put Gary Cuozzo out of the game with a brutal, fourth-quarter tackle, agreed the Giants were a different team than the one he had seen on films.

"Offensively and defensively, they were off the ball quicker than we were," he said. "The Giants just played super all over the field.

"They were a lot like us today. We got 40 guys pulling for one thing—we want to win."

George Did It Again For the Raiders

By GREG GALLO
UPI Sports Writer

While men of his own generation were slumped back in their living room easy chairs, sipping beer and playing Sunday afternoon quarterback, 44-year-old George Blanda was on the football field, leading the Oakland Raiders to a 20-20 tie with the Kansas Cith Chiefs.

"George did it again," said Raiders' coach John Madden of the man who has bailed out his team many times with last minute heroics. Blanda came off the bench Sunday with 8:50 remaining and proceeded to put 10 points on the scoreboard, salvaging the tie and boosting himself ahead of Lou Groza as the all-time National Football League scoring leader with 1,609 career points.

"No, Lamonica (Daryle) wasn't hurt," Madden explained after the game. "I just had a feeling about substituting Blanda. We needed new life."

Blanda is no old fuddy-duddy. He may look like one but once he's on the field he generates that spark. He moves the ballclub.

"George is a helluva competitor," said Chiefs' coach Hank Stram, after his team held Oakland on the one-yard line and forced Blanda to kick an eight-yard field goal with just 2:31 left to tie the game. "He keeps you off balance and gave the team a lift. Our pass pressure against him wasn't any different than it was against Lamonica. But George goes off on a quicker count and gets the ball away faster than Lamonica."

In other games Sunday, San Francisco defeated New England 27-10, Miami edged Los Angeles 20-14, Baltimore downed Pittsburgh 34-21, Washington best New Orleans 24-14, Chicago upset Dallas 23-19, Minnesota edged the New York Giants 17-10, Atlanta bombed Cleveland 31-14, Philadelphia stunned Denver 17-16, St. Louis edged Buffalo 28-23, San Diego crushed the New York Jets 49-21, and Houston defeated Cincinnati 10-6. Detroit plays Green Bay at Milwaukee tonight.

Kansas City led 20-10 when Blanda relieved Lamonica in the final period. The 23-year veteran of NFL wars hit tight end Ray Chester with a 38-yard pass and then found Fred Biletnikoff in the end zone with a 24-yard scoring strike.

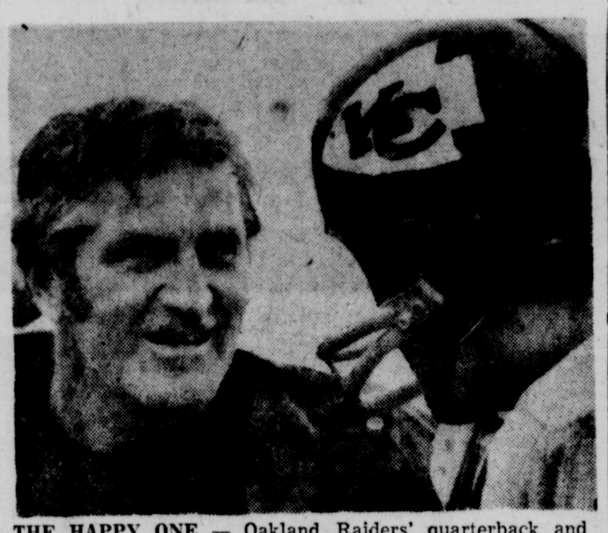

After the Chiefs were unable to move the ball, the Old Grey Fox marched the Raiders from the Kansas City 45-yard line to the goaline—six inches away from a touchdown.

Madden made the decision to go for the tying field goal and Blanda calmly booted the ball through the uprights. The tie left the Raiders and the Chiefs deadlocked for first place in the Western Division of the American Football Conference with 5-1-1 records.

San Francisco took the lead in the National Football Conference's Western Division as quarterback John Brodie hit Gene Washington with a 71-yard touchdown pass and center Forest Blue ran 25 yards for a touchdown with a recovered fumble in the final period; the Rams, who dropped a half game behind the Forty Niners, were beaten by two touchdown passes by the Dolphins' Bob Griese and two Garo Yepremian field goals; and Earl Morrall's three touchdown passes sparked the Colts to victory, their fifth in seven games.

Bill Kilmer gained revenge against his old teammates when he ran for one TD and passed for another to lead the Redskins over the Saints; Norm Snead came off the bench and found Bob Grim with a 55-yard touchdown pass with only 1:04 remaining to lift the Vikings over the Giants; and Bobby Douglas accounted for two touchdowns and Mac Percival kicked three field goals to pace the Bears over the Cowboys.

Dick Shiner passed for two touchdowns to lead the Falcons over the Browns; the Eagles, sparked by an aroused defense that led to two touchdowns, held off the Broncos; and Jim Hart threw two TD passes in the second half to pace the Cardinals to victory.

THE HAPPY ONE — Oakland Raiders' quarterback and kicker George Blanda (L) is congratulated by Kansas City Chief's Johnny Robinson after Blanda broke the all-time professional football scoring record in Sunday's Raiders-Chiefs game. Blanda scored eight points in the game for a total of 1609 points scored in 22 seasons. With Blanda's help, the Raiders tied the Chiefs, 20-20. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Nicklaus Wins Aussie Tourney

HOBART0 Australia (UPI)—Jack Nicklaus Sunday won the Qantas Open golf title by eight strokes at Royal Hobart.

Nicklaus turned in a two-under-par 70 to finish with a 19-under-par total of 269 to pick up a first prize of $4,176.

In second place with 277 was Bruce Crampton, of Australia, while sharing third spot at 280 were Americans Dave Stockton and Dave Hill. Hill finished with a 72 and Stockton with a of 69.

The defending champion, Gary Player of South Africa, was at 282, following a 71 in which he knocked in a putt from 20 feet for a birdie at the last hole.

" I look to the Australian Open as the fifth major championship of the world," Nicklaus said, following the match. "The Piccadilly Match Play is a great tournament and the PGA (Professional Golf Association) match play is going to be a great event. But they are not national championships. I'd rather have my name in the record book as Australia Open Champion than as the winner of any tour event in the United States."

Marino Champ

JOHNSTON CITY, Ill. (UPI) — Jim Marino, Los Angeles, outlasted the veteran Luther Lassiter, Elizabeth City, N.C., in a playoff ending early Sunday to win the $20,000 11th annual World's All-Around Pocket Billiards Campionship.

Garrison Ends Slump At Expense of Jets

SAN DIEGO (AP)—After five outstanding seasons of catching passes for the San Diego Chargers, Gary Garrison had been in what he called a "mysterious slump" for the first six games of this one.

Heading into Sunday's game with the New York Jets, rookie Billy Parks paced the receiving corps while Garrison continued to ponder his predicament.

Veteran San Diego quarterback John Hadl quickly put Garrison back into the spotlight, however, as the two combined to spark the Chargers to a 49-21 rout of the New York Jets.

Hadl, enjoying one of his finest afternoons, hit 19 of 27 passes for 358 yards and four touchdowns in improving the Charger record to 3-4. The Jets fell to 2-5.

Garrison led all receivers with six catches for 162 yards and a key 49-yard touchdown.

"I've never had any doubt about Gary," said Hadl. "He got off to a slow start this season but we've been together six years now so there's no reason this one should be any different.

"Actually, I'm throwing the ball better than I ever have," continued Hadl, "and Gary should be just coming into his prime. We were clicking today—there's no doubt about that."

"Anytime you get beat 49-21 you've been beat by a good team," Jet coach Weeb Ewbank said. "Most of our men in the defensive secondary were playing injured or were unable to play because of injuries, though."

Though Garrison's effort paved the way, rookies Parks and Mike Montgomery played key roles. Parks caught four passes for 75 yards and a 28-yard score while Montgomery caught four for 72 yards and a 37-yard touchdown. Montgomery also scored on a 13-yard run.

"We're throwing the ball better," noted winning coach Sid Gillman. "We've got a fine football team. We've just got to find ways to eliminate our mistakes."

Gillman said game balls were given to Garrison and cornerback Bob Howard, who held the Jets' veteran receiver Don Maynard to just one catch for five yards.

Hadl, who didn't go to the air the final six minutes, wound up just one yard off his all-time best day of 359 yards against Oakland in 1968. He also was just 11 yards off Tobin Rote's Charger team record.

Hulme and Revson Both Had Their Kicks

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI)—Denis Hulme was the winner. Peter Revson had the smile on his face.

Although the grizzled veteran from New Zealand won the battle, the 32-year-old bachelor from Redondo Beach, Calif., won the war. The war was worth $25,000.

Hulme won his third straight Times Grand Prix at Riverside and Revson became the first American to capture the Canadian-Challenge Cup Series by finishing second, 46.6 seconds back in second place.

Revson, who supplanted Hulme as the champion of the 10-race series, said he was just trying to win the Can-Am title. That meant finishing in the top six.

"This is the biggest thing to happen to me in racing," said Revson, a 12-year veteran who was the pole sitter at Indianapolis last May.

Revson, who won five Can-Am races this year including the one at Monterey, Calif., two weeks ago, feared he might not make it two thirds of the way through the 61-lap, 201.3-mile race over Riverside's 3.3-mile, nine-turn course.

The transplanted New Yorker's bright orange Gulf McLaren Chevy began losing oil.

"I felt a vibration and then smoke came up through the car," Revson said. "I was more than a little worried. I tried to take it easy after that."

Hulme, the Can-Am champ in 1970 and 1968, averaged 123.727 miles per hour compared to his second pole setting time of 129.186.

Hulme had a Riverside record lap of 125.940 on the third lap in the race in which only the winner and Revson were on the same lap at the finish.

Our world diminishes from natural beauty to ugly clutter. A painful contrast that raises the question "Why?" In fact, why poverty in a land of plenty? Why loneliness in a world that would join hands? Why war when the impulse of the heart is to love? The aching chasm between the real and the ideal everywhere provokes the question...

WHY?

In a world looking for answers maybe God is the place to start. God is hope. God is now.

There'll Always Be Talk About . . .

The Field Goal That Wasn't

By IRA FUSFELD

AMSTERDAM

They'll be talking about Saturday's Kingston-Amsterdam high school football game for along time.

Rarely in recent seasons has there been a game approached with as much anticipation and played as well on both sides. Amsterdam won, 8-7, if you hadn't already heard, and extended its record to 5-0-1 while dropping the previously unbeaten Maroons to 5-1.

They'll be talking about the running of Amsterdam's Dave Weissman and how he tore up over 100 yards of Lynch Stadium turf.

They'll be talking about how Kingston stopped an Amsterdam drive on the four yard line, then marched 96 yards, all on the ground, for its touchdown. And what a beautiful drive it was.

Joe Riley carried ten times on Glen Littlefield handoffs during the march and was the touchdown scorer. Wes Cole handled it five times and Mark Snyder three times. Up the middle, slants, counters, a fine drive.

They'll be talking about how an Amsterdam series at the outset of the third quarter, which the Maroon defense had seemingly stopped, continued when Kingston was assessed with a personal foul, one which most observers believe swung the momentum away from KHS.

They'll be talking about Weissman's 10-yard TD run on fourth down, just after the Rams had taken a big loss on a fumbled pitchout. It was Weissman at his best as he shot through a hole and struggled free from the grasp of a Kingston defender who had him by the shirt.

But most of all they'll be talking about the field goal that wasn't. A field goal which could have given Kingston a victory.

It's too bad in a way that when people think back to the 1971 Kingston High School football season the thing that many will probably say will be "We would have been undefeated of we'd have tried for the field goal."

Perhaps the phantom field goal will be the difference when all is said and done (the Maroons still have two games left). Kingston was trailing by a point and had the ball on the Ram ten with a fourth and one and some eight minutes to go.

The decision was simply this: should Bruce McCrindle, who had kicked two this season, go for the three pointer or should KHS go for the first down. He would have been almost directly in front of the goal posts, on a dry field, and with little wind.

If made the score would have been 10-8 and Amsterdam would have regained possession with plenty of time to retaliate. If missed Amsterdam would have the ball, but Kingston still would conceivably get it back in time.

A try for a first could have led to a touchdown which would have made the score 13-8. That would have left still another choice; one point conversion or two, but it would have been an easier question once Kingston had the lead.

A miss on the first down attempt would give Amsterdam the ball, deep in its territory, with plenty of time, seemingly, for Kingston to recover and score.

By now you are aware that Coach Tony Badalato went for the last alternative. He sent John Tiano straight up the middle on a play that had worked throughout the game and this time was stopped.

What didn't go according to form was Amsterdam's part of the "if" story. The Rams did not relinquish the football for six minutes and by then it was too late for Kingston to win.

So the decision proved to be a bad one. It was one which Badalato later said was a mistake on his part since the Kingston players, not his coaching staff or his own instincts, told him to go for broke.

But that's football. The field goal decision was just the most obvious choice of the day. There were other moves, strategies, adjustments, etc., that had to be employed throughout the ball game.

What if Kingston had decided an air attack would have been better than a running game? Or what if Amsterdam had passed on fourth down instead of giving it to Weissman for the end sweep touchdown? And what if Amsterdam had missed the two point play which gave it the winning margin: instead of trying for the sure extra point?

Kingston didn't lose that game on one play. It didn't lose period. Amsterdam won.

Hoboken Bounces Kickers

MORGAN HILL

The ball took several funny bounces but seldom in the Kingston Kickers' favor here Saturday, as the New Yorkers dropped a 4-1 decision to Hoboken Football Club in a German-American Soccer Associaton Premier Division contest at Oehler's Soccer Stadium.

Player-Cach Henry Ingber said, "we cannot argue the final score but it was a frustrating loss, since we played a better game that the 4-1 score indicates."

The visitors broke into the scoring column within two minutes after the opening kickoff, with Tom Erskine's well-placed kick zooming past Kicker goalie Ron Valle, who never had a chance to block the shot.

The Kickers' only goal came at the 22-minute mark. Gino Ventriglia made a fast breakaway down the right side of the field drew the defense to himself, then passed off to Bernie Schaeffer, who drilled it under the crossbars.

Spacek, at 34 minutes, and Luzzi six minutes later scored on "loose ball" plays to put Hoboken ahead, 3-1, at the half. During the second half, the visitors picked up another loose ball to end the scoring with Luzzi's second goal at 65 minutes.

The Kickers completely dominated the second half action but were unable to crack the Hoboken defense. Three times Kickers shots rebounded off Hoboken goal posts. Several other net-bound shots were blocked by the alert Hoboken defense.

Arnaldo Richards, the new inside left, added a needed spark to the Kickers' forward line and set up several excellent plays. Time and again, we had an opportunity to score, but we couldn't dent the net," said Ingber.

Once the loose ball play ended with a Hoboken player slamming the ball into the cords. "Goalie Ron Valle almost deflected the shot, but the ball went off his arm into the goal," Vizvary explained. "This was one of the the few times the Hoboken team really ventured into the Kingston half of the field." Jim Reinhardt, Schaffer and Ventrigila all hit the Hoboken crossbars.

The loss was the fifth straight for the Kickers. In the prelim, the Sport Club Old Timers tied the Hoboken reserve team, 2-2.

Bench Work Pleases Warriors Joe Ellis

By United Press International

Joe Ellis is one of the few players in the National Basketball Association who would rather come in off the bench than start. He showed why Sunday night.

Ellis, a stringbean 6-foot-6, 190-pounder, came off the bench to score 12 points in the last quarter and spark the Golden State Warriors to a 109-105 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers.

Ellis entered the game late in the third period after Clyde Lee picked up his third personal foul and broke the game open with his torrid shooting in the last period. He finished with 20 points as he led the Warriors to their fifth victory in their last six games and a second place tie with the Lakers in the NBA's Pacific Division.

Cazzie Russell was high scorer for Golden State with 32 points and Fritz Williams had 23. Gail Goodrich of the Lakers was the game's high scorer with 38.

In other NBA action Sunday, the Milwaukee Bucks ripped the Cleveland Cavaliers 112-102 and the Houston Rockets routed the Buffalo Braves 102-87.

Kareem Jabbar hit 14-of-19 field goal attempts and finished with 35 points as the Bucks romped past Cleveland. He hit on a pair of three-point plays early in the game to give Milwaukee a lead it never relinquished. John Johnson was high man for Cleveland with 19 points.

Rookie Cliff Meely scored 19 points and Calvin Murphy added 16 as the Rockets beat Buffalo. Dick Cunningham scored six of his 10 points during a 32-point second quarter that put the game out of reach for Houston. Bob Kauffman led Buffalo with 15.

On the ABA, the Nets beat Kentucky, 107-103, despite Dan Issel's 42 points. Virginia beat Pittsburgh, 134-124. Memphis ripped Denver, 117-106, and Dallas topped Indiana, 125-108.

Rick Barry had 25 and Bill Melchionni 24 to lead the Nets over Kentucky. Artis Gilmore was impressive in defeat with 13 points and 17 rebounds.

New Coach For Wings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Detroit Red Wings won a game but lost a coach.

"I asked them if they would win this one for me and they did," said Doug Barkley, who resigned after Detroit's 3-1 National Hockey League victory over Pittsburgh Sunday night.

The triumph broke a four-game losing streak. The spin was the main reason for Barkley's departure.

"I just couldn't get the team going," said Barkley, who was replaced by Johnny Wilson, a former Red Wing who coached in the American Hockey League.

The switch in leadership followed two other changes over the weekend. Bill McCreary replaced Sid Abel at St. Louis and Fred Glover succeeded Larry Regan at Los Angeles.

Goaltender Al Smith made Barkley's departure a little sweeter, outdueling Penguin goalie Roy Edwards. The Red Wing was the busier of the two, turning aside 35 shots.

In the other NHL games, it was Vancouver 6, Chicago 2; New York 3, Toronto 3, Philadelphia 5, Montreal 3; Boston 5, Minnesota 2 and California tied Buffalo 2-2.

Third period goals by Dave Keon and Jim Harrison salvaged a tie for Toronto. The Leafs trailed 3-1 after New York rattled off a 19-shot first period but put together some tight checking and their late rally to deadlock the Rangers.

Ed Marinaro Is Annoyed By Downgrading of Ivy

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Cornell's Ed Marinaro massaged a swollen right hand and fielded questions about records, the Heisman Trophy, the pros and pressure. He had just broken college football's 4,000-yard barrier and knew a great deal about pressure.

"This week was a tough week," he said. "Everybody was . . . well, not bothering me, but, you know, calling all the time. I'm glad it's over with."

Marinaro had battered a determined Columbia defense 47 times for 272 yards, raising his career rushing total to 4,132. No other major college player had ever passed the 4,000 yard mark in three seasons, and the 6-foot-2½ senior had done it with nine-game Ivy League schedules and still has three games to go.

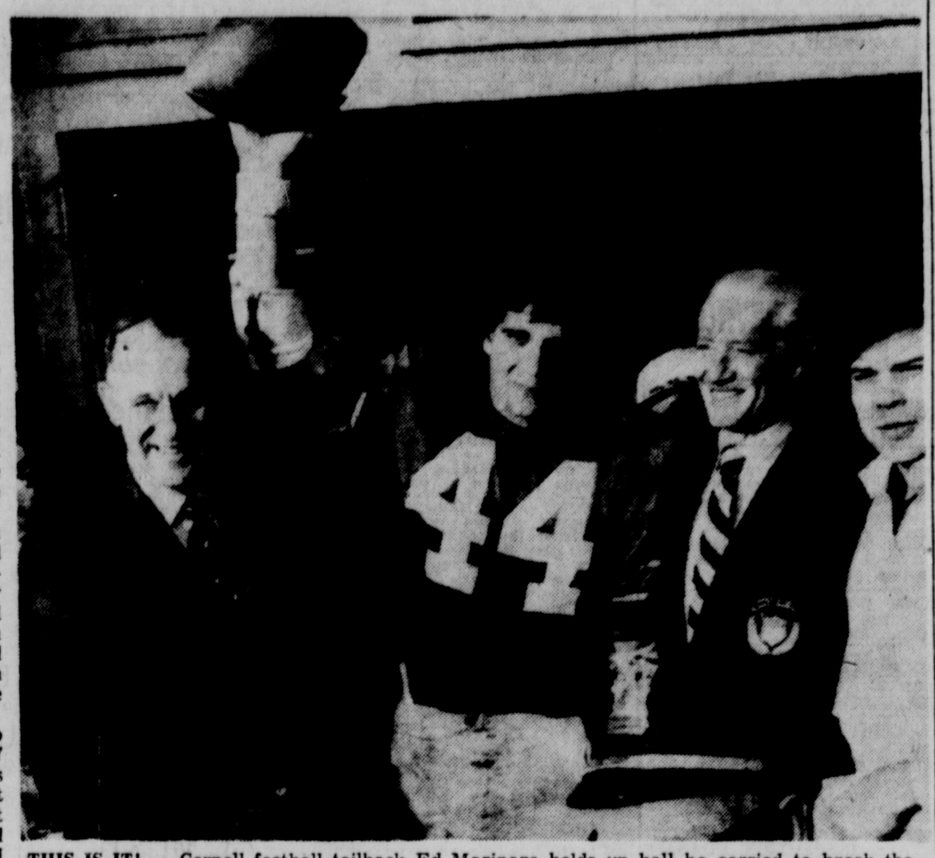

There was hero-worship on sun-splashed Schoellkopf Field Saturday and it seemed alternately to embarrass and annoy Marinaro. He had his personal pressure, but Columbia kept a pressure on all the Big Red and it took a 35-yard field goal in the last five minutes to salvage the 24-21 homecoming victory.

He had needed eight yards to crack the career record of 3,867 set by Oklahoma's Steve Owens in 1967-69. The crowd knew it and the ovation was to great when he trotted onto the field that the kickoff was delayed momentarily for it to subside.

Then Cornell's Bob Joehl fumbled on the first play and before Marinaro could run the ball once the game was six minutes old and Big Red was behind 7-0.

"I didn't really feel the pressure until I got into the game and the crowd reacted," Marinaro said later. "I think everybody reacted to it. I mean, Bobby Joehl doesn't usually fumble. He just got a little nervous out there."

Marinaro got six yards on an end sweep the first time he ran the ball. He slashed off tackle on the next play, disappearing beneath a mountain of white uniforms, his blue-soled shoes visible from beneath the pile.

THIS IS IT! — Cornell football tailback Ed Marinaro holds up ball he carried to break the NCAA career rushing record Saturday. The ball was presented to him by Cornell President Dale R. Corson (L). At right is Dean of Athletics Robert J. Kane. Ed's new record is 4,132 yards. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

But the crowd noise told him he'd broken the record. The game was halted momentarily and the ball retrieved for presentation to him later. And, with a gesture that has become customary with him in moments of triumph, he held both arms high above his head and returned to the huddle.

As his yardage total has grown, speculation about the possibility of his winning the Heisman—given annually to college football's top player—has grown with it. So has talk about the caliber of competition in the Ivy League and this visibly annoys the boyish-looking Marinaro.

"I don't have to prove myself to anybody," he said in response to one reporter's locker-room question about post-season bowl games with top seniors from other conferences.

Asked specifically about the Heisman, he replied: "I think if I keep playing the same type ball I've been playing, and keep gaining yards, my chances will increase each week."

Noticing the questioning glances at his swollen hand, Marinaro laughed and said, "It happens every week. I fall on it when I'm tackled and that's a lot."

In the crucial drive late in the game—with the score knotted at 21-21—Marinaro carried the ball nine straight times, until a time out was mercifully called and he could rest.

"I needed that time out," he said. "I knew if I had a rest I could keep going."

Durability—the ability to batter a line 47 times a game—is one thing pro scouts cite when they say they believe Marinaro is a top pro prospect.

Nebraska, Oklahoma Great . . . But

Don't Overlook Michigan

With Nebraska and Oklahoma continuing their merry chase toward a Thanksgiving Day college football showdown, there has been a tendency to overlook Michigan, but the unbeaten Wolverines put a stop to that trend Saturday with a 61-7 rout of Indiana.

"Our goal is to go undefeated and win the Rose Bowl," said star runner Billy Taylor, who ripped the Indiana defenses for 172 yards and two touchdowns on only 11 carries, boosting his school record to 2,694 yards and coming within three of Tom Harmon's career mark of 33 touchdowns. "Then they will have to pick us No. 1. I think we're No. 1 right now."

The Wolverines currently are ranked third behind Nebraska and Oklahoma. Nebraska defeated ninth-rated Colorado 31-7 while Oklahoma overpowered Iowa State 43-12.

The top seven teams all maintained their perfect slates. Fourth-ranked Alabama trimmed Mississippi State 41-10, No. 5 Auburn downed Florida 40-7, sixth-rated Penn State took West Virginia 35-7 and Georgia, No. 7, stopped South Carolina 24-0, the third consecutive shutout turned in by the Bulldog defenders, who have permitted only 21 points in their last seven games.

The three other major unbeatens continued their winning ways, but two of them needed late field goals. Toledo, ranked 15th, upped the nation's longest winning streak to 31 games by trouncing Miami of Ohio 45-6, matching the 1948-50 Oklahoma teams for the second longest skein in modern times.

Rounding out the Top Ten, ninth-ranked Arkansas suffered its second big upset, bowing to Texas A&M 17-9 behind Mark Green's two touchdowns and a defense that prevented the Razorbacks from establishing a running attack. Ohio State, ranked 10th, stopped Minnesota's Craig Curry inches short of the goal line on a disputed fourth-period two-point conversion attempt to preserve a 14-12 triumph over the Gophers.

The big news elsewhere ranged from the sublime to the tragic. Eric Allen of Michigan State set a major college record by rambling for 350 yards (he carried 29 times and scored four touchdowns) in a 43-10 rout of Purdue. Coach Jim Pittman of Texas Christian collapsed and died during his team's game with Baylor. The players, informed at halftime that Pittman was dead, rallied to defeat the Bears 34-27.

Michigan's Bo Schembechler apologized for running up 61 points on hapless Indiana. "I didn't think we would win this way," he said, "and I didn't want to. I would have liked a closer game. The coach at Indiana is one of my best friends and I didn't want to beat John (Pont) that way.

"John was not only my teammate, but my roommate at Miami of Ohio," Schembechler recalled. "He was the greatest player in Miami history. They retired his number. He's a great competitor and a class guy. I wish I have as much class as John Pont if I ever get beaten this badly."

Nebraska combined a rugged defense and Jerry Tagge's pinpoint passing to defeat Colorado, which Coach Bob Devaney called "the finest team we've played yet."

Colorado's Eddie Crowder called Nebraska "a magnificent football team," but declined to predict the outcome of the Cornhuskers' game with Oklahoma. He did say it would take "a really super game" to beat Nebraska.

Ken Johnson, the Colorado quarterback, said: "Nebraska's got the better defense, but I think Oklahoma has got the better offense. It's gonna be unreal."

The Sooners rolled up 504 yards on the ground in beating Iowa State. Quarterback Jack Mildren passed for 175 yards—that's right, Oklahoma threw the ball—and two touchdowns and ran for 148 and two more scores.

"You could prepare four different game plans and they could find another way to beat you," said Coach Johnny Majors of the losers.

Alabama pulled away from Mississippi State with 24 points in the final period as Bear Bryant tied Jess Neely for fourth place on the all-time coaching list with 207 victories. Auburn also broke loose after being held to a 12-7 halftime lead and swamped Florida with Pat Sullivan and Terry Beasley teaming up on two scoring strikes.

Lee Trevino Has New Version of Grand Slam

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Lee Trevino, with his sixth title of the year in his pocket and an all-time money winning record in the books, set out for Mexico today in search of a fourth national open golf championship.

"That's what I really want to do, win a fourth national open championship for a grand slam, the Super Mex said Sunday after taking the Sahara Invitational and establishing a single season money winning record of $227,243.

Trevino, four strokes off the pace starting the final round Sunday, fired a six under-par 66 and vaulted past third round leader Bob Dickson with a 72 hole total of 280.

It was his first victory since his unprecedented sweep of the American, Canadian and British Open titles was completed in Southport, England, July 11. While most of the American touring pros are taking a couple of weeks off, Trevino is entered in the Mexican Open, a $30,000 event, at the Club de Golf in Mexico City starting this Thursday.

But he hinted that he may change his announced plans of playing in the rest of the tournaments on the American tour. It all depends on the chase for the money winning title.

Big George Archer also had a 66 and took second at 281, but never really challenged Trevino, who has emerged this season as the dominant figure in the game.

Dickson slipped to third with a 72 for 282, falling behind when Trevino reeled off a string of three consecutive birdies starting on the sixth hole. Don January was alone in third at 283, followed by Ron Cerrudo at 285 and Gay Brewer and Fred Marti at 286.

Arnold Palmer, never really a factor, had a final 73 for 290, well back. Jack Nicklaus, who held the No. 1 money winning spot with $207,080, did not compete. Palmer now has $196,206, the best of his fabled career.

CFL's Gauder Not Hopeful About N.Y. Team

TORONTO (AP) — Commissioner Jake Gahdaur breakfasted Sunday with four New York City men seeking a Canadian Football League franchise, but he held little hope for the visitors that their bid would be accepted.

"Your chances are not too good," Gaudaur told the men, two of whom represented Mayor John Lindsay's office. "Based on what's happened in the past, I don't think the CFL will vote to take in any American teams."

The four, including Richard Aurelio, deputy mayor of New York, and Herbert Huber, director of labor relations for the City of New York, later in the day saw the Hamilton Tiger-Cats upset the Toronto Argonauts 23-15 to clinch second place in the Eastern Football Conference standings.

"We're reluctant to expand into the states for fear of losing our Canadian identity," Gaudaur added. CFL owners will discuss expansion into the United States at a meeting in Vancouver Nov. 26.

Yes, Sir

When a sportswriter referred to the object Minnesota Viking defensive end Carl Eller was carrying as a "purse," the 6-foot-6, 250-pound strongman turned and growled, "It's an 'outside wallet' and don't you forget it."

STATE OF NEW YORK
DEPARTMENT OF STATE
Albany, September 30, 1971

Pursuant to the provisions of section seventy-two of the Election Law, the following Proposition Number One and Proposed Amendments to the State Constitution Numbers One and Two, will be submitted to the voters of the State for approval or disapproval, at the General Election on November second, nineteen hundred seventy-one.

JOHN P. LOMENZO
Secretary of State

Abstract of Proposition Number One

The purpose and effect of Chapter 1131 of the Laws of 1971, to be known as the Transportation Capital Facilities Bond Act of nineteen hundred seventy-one, is to authorize the creation of a state debt in an amount not to exceed in the aggregate two billion, five hundred million dollars to provide monies to be used, in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as the Legislature may prescribe, for the acquisition, construction, reconstruction and improvement of transportation capital facilities and equipment and for the acquisition of real property and interests in real property required or expected to be required therefor. Separate allocations of the monies to be received from the sale of bonds are made for (a) State highways, State and federally aided highway and highway-transportation projects, State parkways and arterial highways (one billion, one hundred fifty million dollars); (b) rapid transit, railroad, omnibus or marine transportation capital facilities and equipment (one billion, one hundred fifty million dollars); and (c) rapid transit railroad, omnibus or marine transportation capital facilities and equipment in and between upstate communities and between upstate communities and the City of New York (two hundred million dollars). The statute provides for the submission to the voters at the 1971 general election of the following proposition or question: "Shall chapter 1131 of the laws of nineteen hundred seventy-one, known as the transportation capital facilities bond act of nineteen hundred seventy-one, authorizing the creation of a state debt in the amount of two billion, five hundred million dollars, ($2,500,000,000) to provide monies for the acquisition, construction, reconstruction and improvement of certain highway and mass transportation facilities and equipment, be approved?"

Form of Submission of Proposition Number One Transportation Bond Issue

Shall chapter 1131 of the laws of nineteen hundred seventy-one, known as the transportation capital facilities bond act of nineteen hundred seventy-one, authorizing the creation of a state debt in the amount of two billion, five hundred million dollars ($2,500,000,000) to provide monies for the acquisition, construction, reconstruction and improvement of certain highway and mass transportation facilities and equipment, be approved?

Abstract of Proposed Amendment Number One

The purpose and effect of this proposed amendment is to create a new framework for the State and local governments to assist community development. Community development includes programs for adequate, safe and sanitary housing; urban and community renewal; development of economic prosperity and adequate employment opportunities; health, mental health and environmental health; child care and aged care; transportation and communications; civic, cultural, recreational and other community facilities and services.

The amendment proposes the addition to the Constitution of a new article eighteen, entitled "Community Development," and repeal of the present article eighteen of the Constitution, entitled "Housing." The new article provides that upon a finding of a public need and public purpose that cannot be met by the unaided operation of private enterprise, the Legislature may provide by law for community development programs. In order to carry out such programs, the State, to the extent authorized by law, may grant or lend money and property to and contract indebtedness for any individual, partnership, trust, association, public or private corporation or local government for community development purposes. Any law authorizing the State to contract indebtedness must be approved by the people at a general election. Any such law may authorize the contracting of indebtedness for one or more works or purposes. Local governments, including any county, town, city or village or combination thereof, would be granted similar powers. Provision is also made for the State or any local government to guarantee the principal or interest on indebtedness of any individual, partnership, trust, association or private or public corporation or local government for community development purposes. The State and any local government would also be authorized to enter into contracts for periodic subsidies. The contingent liability on any such indebtedness and the present value of the subsidies contracted for and remaining unpaid shall be deemed indebtedness of the State or local government, and, in the case of the State, must be approved by the people at a general election.

The new article provides for the acquisition of property by the State, any local government or any public corporation on its own behalf or on behalf of any individual, partnership, trust, association, private or public corporation or local government for community development purposes including property ultimately necessary or proper to effectuate any community development program. Such property may be granted, sold or leased to effect any community development purpose. Tax exemptions or abatements in whole or in part for such purposes may be granted by the State for periods not to exceed sixty years.

The provisions of existing article eight, section four of the Constitution would be amended to combine the present 2% debt limit for housing, nursing home and slum clearance activities, based on the average assessed valuation of taxable real estate, with the general debt limit of cities, towns, and villages, based on the average full valuation of taxable real estate. The combined limit would be based on average full valuation. In the case of counties, the general debt limit would be increased by 2% and would be available for financing community development activities.

Form of Submission of Proposed Amendment Number One Community Development

Shall the proposed amendment adding a new article eighteen to the Constitution, providing for community development as prescribed by the Legislature where there exists a public need and purpose therefor which cannot be met by the unaided operation of private enterprise; authorizing the State or any local government, for community development purposes and to the extent provided by law, to grant or lend money to, contract indebtedness for and make loans to, guarantee the principal of or interest on indebtedness or both, and enter into contracts for periodic subsidies with, any individual, partnership, trust, association, private or public corporation or local government; providing that any such law authorizing the State to contract indebtedness shall be subject to the approval of the people at a general election; authorizing the acquisition of property and the grant, sale or lease thereof for any such purpose; authorizing the State to grant or authorize tax exemptions or abatements; and repealing article eighteen of the Constitution as presently in force; and amending article eight, section four of the Constitution to modify the constitutional debt limits of counties, cities, towns and villages, for any purpose including community development, be approved?

Abstract of Proposed Amendment Number Two

The purpose and effect of this proposed amendment is to permit a county, city, town or village to exclude indebtedness contracted after January 1, 1962 and prior to January 1, 1983 (instead of January 1, 1973) for construction or reconstruction of sewage facilities in ascertaining the constitutional debt limit of such county, city, town or village, pursuant to method, terms and conditions prescribed by the Legislature.

Form of Submission of Proposed Amendment Number Two Indebtedness for Sewage Facilities

Shall the proposed amendment to paragraph E of section five of article eight of the Constitution, permitting a county, city, town or village to exclude indebtedness contracted after January 1, 1962 and prior to January 1, 1983, (instead of January 1, 1973) for sewage facilities in ascertaining the constitutional debt limit of such county, city, town or village, be approved?

That's how many times we inspect a Volkswagen.

These are some of the ok's our little car has to get in our factory.

(It's easy to tell the ok's from the no's. One no is all you ever see.)

We pay 8,397 people just to look for things to say no to.

And no is no.

A visitor from Brazil once asked us what we were going to do about a roof that came through with a dent in it.

Dents are easy to hammer out.

So what we did shook him a little.

We smashed the roof down to a metal lump and threw it out in the scrap pile.

We stop VWs for little things that you may never notice yourself.

The fit of the lining in the roof.

The finish in a doorjamb.

In the final inspection alone, our VW has to get through 342 points without one blackball.

One out of 20 doesn't make it.

But you should see the ones that get away.

President, State Tried In Mock Panther Court

NEW YORK (UPI)—A mock trial organized by the Black Panthers "tried" state officials and President Nixon Sunday night on charges in connection with the Attica prison rebellion. As expected, they were convicted.

Charles Garry of San Francisco, long an attorney for the Panthers, acted as prosecutor in the trial in a ballroom of a Brooklyn hotel. There were no defense attorneys.

The "defendants" were costumed figures masquerading as Nixon, Governor Rockefeller, State Correction Commissioner Russell Oswald, Attica Superintendent Vincent Mancusi and State Police Maj. Henry Williams, who led the assault that ended the prisoners' rebellion.

An audience of about 500 persons jeered as the "defendants" gave their accounts of the events at Attica.

The charges were conspiracy to commit murder, first degree murder, attempted murder and "crimes against humanity."

A jury of 40 persons picked from the crowd found the defendants guilty.

"This tribunal has no power to punish but the power of the people is supreme," one of the judges said. "So the power to punish lies with you, the people of America."

Visitors were searched as they entered by members of the state chapter of the Black Panther party. Bobby Seale, chairman of the party, had announced the charges in a "people's indictment."

Your Horoscope

Tuesday, November 2

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's Full Moon makes it necessary for you to be very careful and wary about getting involved in any financial ventures or arguments with associates you are very fond for it is apt to come from resentment and envy of the other person even though your negative reaction comes from deep, subconscious motives you don't realize.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be scrupulous in handling every responsibility you have toward others instead of running off on some foolish tangent. Your mate is upset about something. Soothe ruffled feathers. Don't add fuel to the fire.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) That argument with an associate could reach major proportions if you are not diplomatic and solve the matter wisely. Stick to principle where contracts with others are concerned. Forget being petty.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have many duties ahead of you so stick to them instead of going off on little byways that lead nowhere. A co-worker wants a scapegoat and it could be you, if you are not wary. Get to bed early tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Ideal day for helping those persons who are having rough sledding and show that your heart is in the right place. Show that you are neutral when others are arguing.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Showing that you are loyal to higher-ups is your best mode of expression today. Do not jeopardize the fine position you now have. Make sure you pay that important bill. Show that you have A-1 credit.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to consider the views of the other person if you are to have good relations with others. Remove any prejudices you may have, also. Study some new philosophy that helps you to do just that.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take care that you do not come through with promises to others of whatever nature and keep out of trouble. You have some intuitive impulse that is erroneous so do not follow it. Stick to your own good judgment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try not to get into an argument with one who is more stubborn than you are or there could be trouble. Do nothing that will jeopardize the prestige you now enjoy. Endeavor to establish more harmony within the home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Keep rooted to own duties and try not to bother others with theirs, or they later fail to cooperate with you. Much care in motion must be exercised or you could cause much damage that is best avoided.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you smile instead of using that temper of yours with others, you find you get far better results with everyone. Show thoughtfulness with everyone and gain their good will. Make sure that one of the opposite sex does not deceive you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Since the Moon is full, others are having tense moments as much as you, so exercise tact and diplomacy. Being of assistance to others makes your own life richer. Show that you have true understanding.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Sit down and figure out accounts accurately, use right words in correspondence, handle transportation matters wisely. Don't take too much money with you when out shopping so you are not tempted to spend more than you have to. Show that you are budget wise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she will need to be taught not to use temper or other means to force others to give what is desired, but to use reason and courtesy so that life becomes more easy and delightful. Otherwise, your progeny could lose friends very quickly, as well as the love of family. Give spiritual training early so that the thoughts become lofty, the ideas of the best, and then this life becomes a very successful and happy one. Sports are good.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

BOY DREAMS: (Q.) I get a funny feeling any time I see a cute boy. I get hooked on him, even if he doesn't know me. I waste my time in my room thinking about him. What can I do to get rid of this feeling?—Time Waster in Texas.

(A.) You are not really wasting your time. And you can't really do anything about these thoughts you have. They are a part of the process of getting accustomed to boys. Just about every girl has them at some time.

You don't give your age, but your writing looks about 12 or 13. When you get a little older, your thoughts will zero in on one or two of the boys and the rest of them won't bug you.

MARK: (Q.) I put my boy friend's initial on my arm with a pin. My mother saw it and it made her furious. Now she says I can't see him or talk to him anymore.

Before this all happened she had no objections to him. What can I do? I can't break up with him. Besides, the mark is very small.—Forbidden in Kansas

(A.) The mark will soon heal and disappear. Perhaps at that time your mother will let you see your friend again.

I hope you realize the seriousness of trying to "tattoo" yourself. It is not only a custom that isn't accepted in our society, but it can also result in infection and serious consequences.

'The Odd Couple' Doing Well

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—It is being widely noted in the television industry that ABC-TV's "The Odd Couple" is not only a much better and funnier show this season, but has moved up well in the ratings since dumping its laugh track. With a live audience instead, the Tony Randall-Jack Klugman comedy is a good deal friskier and seems much more natural.

The latest 70-market ratings, for the week ending Oct. 2 report that "The Odd Couple," which is seen on Friday night, usually the least-watched television night of the week, came in 20th among all shows—which is really the high rent district in the video rankings. In fact, the series has been faring well in the ratings virtually all season.

Normally, the idea of dumping a laugh track for a live audience would seem to appeal to most people I know. Obviously one of the appeals for seasoned performers like Randall and Klugman is that there is a sort of chemistry between actors and audiences when things are going right. Actors have often said they feel more inspired, and react better, when there is a live audience to more or less share the mutual vibrations.

But should we take this standard explanation as proof that live audiences are necessarily an asset for television series? My own feeling is that they usually are, but a lady reader from New Jersey has sent a letter that brings up some interesting points and shows that viewers often can be more perceptive than top industry executives.

Sound Tracks Unreal

"I can't help but wonder," she writes, "why any TV show thinks it is doing us a favor by taking out a laugh track and putting in the laughter of a live audience. One is just as annoying as another. Especially when they laugh and applaud because a sign is held up for them to do so (before a live audience).

"We at home know whether a thing is funny enough to laugh at, we don't need to be prompted by a live audience or anything else. Just where would an audience be in the apartment of anyone, ready to laugh at the occupants? It is so unrealistic. It just ruins the show, so we just don't view anything with an audience or laugh track built in.

"Right, we just don't look at much TV as so many shows now have laugh and audience tracks ... a live audience should ready be screened out if anything. I have never been able to understand how any big star could put up with a sound track or signs prompting a live audience to laugh or applaud. There was a time when big stars worked hard to earn the applause and laughter of the audience.

Prefers TV Movies

"And now when there are reruns, how ridiculous to hear the applause and laughter of sound tracks or live audiences, especially when the show has been rerun more than once. We can view some wonderful movies without the applause and laughter built in, so if they didn't need it, why does any TV show need it?"

Regarding live audiences, my own feeling is that they seem a most natural part of programs like variety shows in which, for instance, standup comedians like Jack Benny play directly to people in front of them, and play off them to good effect. And then there is excitement in audience reactions to interviews like Dick Cavett's recent long one with Fred Astaire. But our lady reader from New Jersey makes some pretty good points of her own in her letter. Only a performer without pride can find satisfaction in having laughter artificially created for him, either by laugh tracks or cue cards.

Bridge

Bold Lead Sinks Sims

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: "Ely Culbertson was a great showman and publicity genius. Back in 1935 he persuaded Hal and Dorothy Sims to play a rubber bridge match against him and Jo Culbertson. The match was a natural from a publicity standpoint and also a cinch for Ely. Jo Culbertson was a great player; Dorothy Sims a poor one."

Jim: "Here is a hand which shows Jo Culbertson at her best. It also indicates why the Simses had no chance. Three no-trump was unbeatable but Hal wanted to score his honors and also to play the hand."

Oswald: "Jo opened the four of spades. She could see that Ely would not show up with much and decided on desperate measures."

Jim: "The desperate measures succeeded. Sims elected to try dummy's jack of spades at trick one. Ely produced the queen and returned a trump. Sims drew trumps and decided to knock out the ace of clubs. Jo went up with the ace and underled her ace of spades a second time. No one can blame Sims for going wrong and playing low from dummy."

Oswald: "Hal could also have made the hand by taking a diamond finesse and discarding a spade but that play would be bad percentage. He was sure of his contract if East held the ace of clubs and still had a chance in spades after Jo won the club trick."

Brezhnev Asserts Primacy

PARIS (AP) Leonid I. Brezhnev's trip to Paris last week has confirmed his primacy in the Soviet Communist party and state hierarchy and has presented him as his country's chief foreign policy spokesman.

After ousting the flamboyant Nikita Khrushchev in 1964, his successors appeared to rule as a genuinely collective triumvirate, with Brezhnev as party chief, Alexei N. Kosygin as head of government, and Nikolai V. Podgorny as president.

Brezhnev's gradual rise at home was modestly crowned last New Year's Eve when he appeared alone on television to give the traditional address to the nation.

Then at the 24th Soviet party congress last spring, a flood of personal praise washed over Brezhnev. He had clearly outdistanced his colleagues. But, until his visit to France his supremacy had not been demonstrated abroad.

Though he is head of the ruling Soviet Communist party, Brezhnev demanded and got honors usually reserved for a chief of state.

AP Analysis

Presumably Brezhnev will continue to lead Soviet negotiations with the West, a task formerly the domain of Kosygin. While France, for its own reasons, was willing to discard established protocol by giving him head-of-state treatment, other nations may be reluctant to do so. As a consequence, some observers are wondering whether Brezhnev, like his predecessor, will eventually combine his party post with that of head of government.

President Georges Pompidou called his guest "the highest authority in the Soviet Union," and Marseille's Socialist mayor, Gaston Defferre, praised him as a man of "vitality, force, even power," who "emanated . . . character."

Replying to Defferre, Brezhnev balanced lip service to the principl e of collective leadership with some open self-promotion.

He said he had come to France "charged by my colleagues to do everything possible to develop and enlarge" French - Soviet collaboration Then he said he spoke "in the name of the Soviet people" and commented: "I agree that each political man or leader must have character. I think it is a question of political character . . . my character is the charac ter of our party, of our people."

Another objective of Brezhnev's trip was symbolized by the letters on the license plate of Pompidou's presidential car which took the visitor around Paris. "PR" for President de la Republique could just as well have stood for public relations.

Known most recently in the West for the Brezhnev Doctrine used to justify the invasion of Czechoslovakia, he tried to overcome his image as the tough party organization man and emerge as the Soviet man with the human face.

Pentagon Papers Probe: 2 Months, No Indictment

BOSTON (AP) — A federal grand jury in Boston has been investigating the leaking of the Pentagon Papers for more than two months and has yet to return indictments. One reason may be that many called as witnesses have so far avoided having to testify.

One such witness is Mrs. Idella Marx of Scarsdale, N.Y., mother-in-law of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology researcher who has acknowledged giving to the press portions of the once secret Defense Department study of the origins of American involvement in the Vietnam war.

Mrs. Marx, wife of toy manufacturer Louis Marx, was ordered Friday by U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity to testify today before the grand jury or go to jail for contempt.

But that order was given before the U.S. Court of Appeals ordered the grand jury to suspend its inquiry indefinitely so that the court may hold a hearing Thursday on the contention of U.S. Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, that grand jury subpoenas for two associates violate his senatorial privilege.

Thus, with the grand jury inquiry suspended, there would be no opportunity for Mrs. Marx to comply with the court's order.

Three of those subpoenaed by the grand jury, in a Department of Justice presentation directed by Asst. U.S. Atty. Warren Reese of the southern district of California, are academic and personal associates of Dr. Ellsberg.

California comes into the picture because Dr. Ellsberg had access to the Pentagon Papers at the Rand Corp., a so-called "think tank" at Santa Monica which does sensitive research for the government.

The three are Professors Richard Falk of Princeton, Samuel Popkin of Harvard and Noam Chomsky of MIT. All have written extensively about the Indochina war. Falk and Chomsky have been active in radical politics.

Of the three, only Popkin has appeared before the grand jury and then he refused answers. One question he declined to answer was, "Do you read The New York Times?"

On Friday, Judge Garrity tentatively suspended subpoenas for Falk and Chomsky and gave the Justice Department one week to disclose if the two had been subjected to wiretapping. If electronic surveillance was employed, further hearings would have to be held on motions to quash the subpoenas, the judge said.

On the same grounds, the court suspended a contempt citation given Falk earlier last week when he refused to appear before the grand jury.

Both Falk and Chomsky said they suspected illegal surveillance was used on them because of their contacts with Hanoi, the Berrigan brothers and some defendants of the Harrisburg federal records raid case, in which the government admitted using wiretaps on some defendants.

Popkin, Falk and Chomsky also are challenging the grand jury subpoenas on the grounds that their positions are comparable to those of newsmen, whose right to protect the confidentiality of their sources is protected by the Constitution.

As Falk put it, "We are in positions comparable to the pamphleteers of old—the men the founding fathers had in mind when they wrote the Constitution."

Thieu Sees, Hears Miseries of War

BIEN HOA, Vietnam (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu walked among the sad little people today and saw and heard the miseries of war.

There were tears and bitterness as Thieu paid his respects to South Vietnam's war dead at the Bien Hoa national cemetery.

Haggard widows of only a few days, in mourning dress with babies in their arms, cried at Thieu's side. The babies cried, too.

Some widows and relatives cursed the president behind his back.

"Nguyen Van Thieu, where is my son? Where is my son?" one woman cried, but Thieu was too far away to hear her.

"You live well, you have a big house," cried another when Thieu was out of hearing distance. "But my husband is dead, leaving his six children. How can I feed them? I curse your ancestors."

Thieu moved among scores of graves, from those of privates to a general's, lighting incense.

He stopped at the cemetery's mortuary where four new coffins were draped with the flag of South Vietnam. The men had been killed in the past few days while on operations in the Saigon area helping to provide security for Thieu's gala inauguration Sunday.

The president spoke briefly with each of their widows, presented them money, then lighted incense at each casket.

His face was drawn, and he appeared to be deeply moved.

Thieu's visit to the cemetery just north of Saigon was part of the observance of National Day, which included prayers for peace and other tributes to the 135,000 South Vietnamese troops who have been killed in action since 1960.

The observance began in Saigon with the sounding of sirens followed by a minute of silence.

Thieu, a convert to Roman Catholicism, also went to the cathedral in the heart of Saigon to pray.

$1.5 Million School Bill Slated for House Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speaker Carl Albert hopes to slip a $1.5 billion school desegregation bill through the House today without making Northern liberals face an embarrassing vote on busing.

The bill, a long-delayed administration measure, is being brought up under a procedure that permits little debate and no amendments. The catch is that it requires a two-thirds majority for passage.

When Albert first announced his plan last week, backers of the bill saw little chance of getting such a majority, but the prospect of disposing of the controversial issue so painlessly could provide the needed votes.

The bill has been ticking like a time bomb on the House agenda since August when President Nixon said he wanted it amended to prohibit the expenditure of any of the money for busing pupils to overcome segregation. Southerners have long sought to add anti-busing riders to school bills only to have Northern civil rights supporters override them. Now the busing controversy has reached the North putting the civil rights supporters in a dilemma.

If they vote for Nixon's no-busing amendment, they will antagonize the civil rights and labor forces that provide generously for their election campaigns. If they vote against it, they risk serious political damage in their home districts and accusations of hypocrisy from Southerners.

Albert's strategy is designed to spare the Northerners from such a choice. Only 40 minutes of debate will be allowed, then the bill must be voted on without any amendments being offered. The procedure is generally used to speed House action on non-controversial measures.

The desegregation bill, formally titled the Emergency School Assistance Program, would provide $500 million this year and $1 billion next year to help school districts devise special programs, train teachers and otherwise meet added costs of desegregating. The chief cost, however, is busing and Nixon's edict against using the money for that purpose has also created a problem for Southern school officials.

They don't really like the bill, which they say is continued federal interference in their affairs, but they want the money to operate the busing programs the federal courts have forced on them.

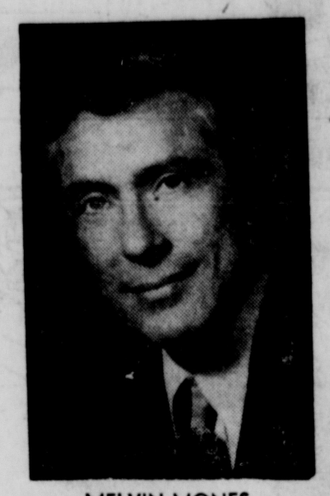

The bill passed by the Senate has no busing ban in it and, with Albert's strategy succeeding, neither would the House version. That would shift the burden back to Nixon, who through his executive powers could still refuse to spend the money for busing.
